1877

The first SUMMER EXHIBITION of the Grosvenor Gallery was opened on the 1st May, 1877, and contained 209 works by living artists. In accordance with the intention of its founder, Sir Coutts Lindsay, Bart., of giving "special advantages of exhibition to artists," the works of each painter were, as far as possible, grouped together for separate examination.

The large WEST GALLERY (104 ft. × 35 ft., hung with crimson damask and divided into panels by gilt pilasters) contained only 83 paintings. The whole of the South Wall was occupied by the works of E. BURNE-JONES, including the six beautiful decorative panels, "The Days of the Creation," now in possession of Mr. W. GRAHAM; "Venus' Mirror," and "The Beguiling of Merlin"—the last sketched overleaf, from an etching published by the proprietors of L'Art. In the centre of the West Wall, opposite the entrance, was a Mil-length portrait of "Lady Lindsay," by Sir Coutts Lindsay, and other works by the same artist, and, at the head of the room, the well-known allegorical picture of "Love and Death," by G. F. Watts, R.A., sketched on p. 4. Other prominent exhibitors were L. Alma-Tadema, R.A., J. E. Millais, R.A., Holman Hunt, W. B. Richmond, R. Spencer Stanhope, Walter Crane, J. M. Whistler and Professor Legros.

In the East Gallery (60 ft. × 28 ft., hung with given, and containing 64 paintings), the largest space, on the East Wall, was devoted to the works of F. Heilbuth and J. Tissot. "The Triumph of Will"—a fair woman standing sword in hand, surrounded by pythons, vipers, &c., representing vices and evil passions—will be remembered by many visitors. The principal positions at the head of this Gallery were occupied by the find portraits of "Lady Lindsay" and "E. Burne-Lones," by G. F. Watts, R.A. the former sketched on the frontispiece). In this Gallery were also works by Sir Frederick Leighton, P.R.A., Sir Francis Grant (late P.R.A.), P. R. Morris A.R.A., G. H. Boughton, A.R.A., and several foreign artists, including Gustave Moreau, G. Costa, Otto Weber, David Bles, &c.

No. 23. "Love and Death." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

In the WALER-COLOUR GALLERY were 48 drawings, 17 being by RICHARD DOYLE, principally fairy scenes, occupying one side of the Gallery. The principal works in SCULPTURE were portrait busts by J. E. BOEHM, R.A.

The works in each Gallery were numbered separately, commencing at the entrance doors and going from right to left. The following is a list of the contents with the original Catalogue numbers.

PREFACE.

THE purpose of "Grosyenor Notes" is to be descriptive, rather than critical; to form an annual record of the summer exhibitions which should be interesting and useful for reference.

The illustrations are intended to convey an idea of the composition, rather than of the effect, of the pictures, and are not intended as works of art. most interesting and useful are those reproduced in facsimile from sketches received from the artists; they are to be distinguished throughout the book by an asterisk (*) under the illustration

The Editor is indebted to those artists who have assisted him with sketches, and to Sir Coutts Lindsay for the facilities afforded him for the rapid production of the book.

The illustrations are produced by A. & W. Dawson.

103 VICTORIA STREET, S.W. May 1, 1878.

NOTICE.—Sketches for "GROSVENOR NOTES" (Summer Exhibition) should be sent to Mr. Henry Blackburn, at his residence, 103 Victoria Street, S.W., or to the care of the Secretary of the Grosvenor Gallery, on or before the 15th April in each year. Exhibitors are requested to give early intimation to Mr. Blackburn of the completion of any important work.

The present collection, being the second summer exhibition of works by living artists, contains 157 oil paintings, 73 water-colous drawings and etchings, and 14 works of sculpture or terracotta.*

Entering the large WEST ROOM by the middle door, we find a group of six paintings by Legros on the opposite wall, occupying the central panel; on the left hand, at the end of the gallery, the position occupied last year by the works of Burne-Jones, is a large landscape by C. G. Lawson, also portraits by C. E. Gregory and J. E. Millais, R.A.; on the right hand, the north end of the gallery is occupied, as last year, by the works of G. F. Watts, R.A.

Commencing on the right of the doorway, the first picture is a curious old-fashioned portrait—

No. 1. "Mrs. Edward Strick" W. WREFORD MAJOR.

Next are four powerful studies of heads, by H. Herkomer, interesting, technically, from the fact of their being painted in transparent water-colours, the impasto given by a paper composition (which is perfectly durable) invented by the painter.

The first is a portrait of Wagner, in dark worn velvet coat; a painting full of character, the best work the artist has yet produced. (See sketch overleaf.)

A list of the Exhibiters in the first year (1877) will be found on page 58

No. 2. "Richard Wagner." HUBERT HERKOMER.

No. Who comes here?" H. HERKOMER.

No. 4. "Souvenir de Rembrandt." H. HERKOMER.

No. 5. "Portrait of a Lady." H. HERKOMER.

These pictures, in which the richness of effect is remarkable, are painted in water colours without the use of body colour.

No. 9. "Coming from St. Ives Market." R. W. MACBETH.

Vivid sunset effect on a dusty road; sheep scattered to the roadside by an approaching cast.

Next, on the line, are three landscapes, by G. COSTA—No 6, The Campagna"; No. 7; "Capri"; No. 8, "On the Shore."

Above the foregoing are—No. 10, "St. Ferome," a study by A. LEGROS, and No. 11, "Portrait of Mons. Rouzaud, in armour," by J. M. JOPLING.

No. 12. "A Portrait, Caprie; in quiet, delicate tones. G. COSTA. No. 13. *Portrait of the Countess Brownlow." • EDWARD CLIFFORD.

Next are three works by Sir Coutts Lindsay.

10.14 "ARTHUL" Sir COUTTS LINDSAY, Bart.

No. 15. "Golden Fetters." Sir COUTTS LINDSAY, Bart. A figure of Cupid enchained.

No. 16. "The Shepherd's Farewell."
Sir Coutts Lindsay, Bart.

A classic landscape with two figures, and sheep on distant hills; somewhat similar in composition to No. 14.

No. 17. "The Earl of Crawford and Balcarres." N. GORDIGIANI.

On the south wall are eleven pictures-

No. 18. "A Portrait." FRANK DICEY.

No. 19. "A Pastoral." MARK FISHER.

Low-toned landscape and a quiet sky; the effect scarcely indicated in the sketch.

Next, on the line, is a very remarkable work by a young painter—

No. 20. "Portrait of W. T. Eley, Esq." E. J. GREGORY.

Three-quarter length figure in brown velvet coat; with a brown dog; dark tapestry background. This portrait is well described by a contemporary, as "a work of vigorous life and individuality, original and powerful in treatment; looking every inch the healthy, keen-witted sportsman, who, like Wordsworth's Peter Bell,

"has fixed his face In many a solitary place Against the wind and open sky."

No. 20a: "Portrait of H.I.H. the Grand-duchess Vladimir of Russia." GASTON RICHTER.

The centre of the south wall is principally occupied by a large landscape by C. G. Lawson, a painter whose work has never been well seen in the Royal Academy. The motive will be best explained in the artist's own words.

"The materials for the composition I found in and about the little hillside that crowns the vallage of Sandhurst. The garden was an old-fashioned one with hollyhocks and roses, marigolds and cloves, and 'the borage beloved of bees,' in comely confusion; its high position and gently sloping character gave me the opportunity of connecting the whole of the pastoral landscape with the garden itself. The aim of the picture, as far as it has anything to do with Goldsmith, is suggestive homage and not illustration; it is not meant as a portrait of 'sweet Auburn loveliest village of the plain,' yet might this tangled garden be the home of one who, 'passing rich on forty pounds a year, allures to brighter worlds and leads the way.'"

No. 21. "The Minister's Garden"; a tribute to the memory of Oliver Goldsmith. CECIL G. LAWSON.

In this landscape the intention of the artist has been to realise the gentle reality of Goldsmith's poem rather than translate to canvas any distinct passage from his works; how he has succeeded, we may judge more accurately after rading the foregoing.

No. 22. "Twins." J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

Portraits of the daughters of T. R. Hoare, Esq.; life-size; dark green dresses, grey hats, and grey dog. A fine example of the artist, painted about two years ago.

No. 23. "Strayed"; a moonlight pastoral. CECIL G. LAWSON.

A small poetical landscape; view over a river to a distant city, sheep in foreground, one-straying from the flock.

The first panel on the west wall is devoted to five works by L. Alma-Tadema. The first on the line is a small figure in robes of low-toned pink and green, her golden-red hair wreathed with ivy; holding a leopard's skin in a basket under her arm; she looks down from a cool marble balcony into a courtyard glaring with mid-day heat. This picture has already been engraved in line, and published by Messrs. Pilgeram and Lefèvre.

No. 25. "A Bacchante." L. ALMA-TADEMA, A.R.A.

"She hears the marble floor repeat
A measured hound of leopards' feet,
Nor hardly deres for sweet desire,

To give her wild heart time to beat."

* No. 55 forms a delicate pendant to Mr. Dicey's portrait, No. 18, on the left hand; contrasting together with the two more vigorous and matterly works on the line by Millais and Gregory.

The care bestowed on the hanging of the pictures may be seen in the arrangement of this end of the room; in the placing of the fine group of Legros opposite the entrance door, and the works of Watts and Burne-Jones in the places of honour at the head of each poom; also in the position of the works of Thomas Armatrong and Albert Moore, each facing the doors leading from the large room; and in other minor details.

No. 26. "Hide and Seek." L. ALMA-TADEMA, A.R.A.

Two little figures in antique Roman costumes, crouching on a marble terrace; two busts on high pedestals; deep blue of southern sky.

Next are the three small pictures sketched below; excellent examples of L. Alma-Tadema. These (and a small picture, No. 256, in the Royal Academy) are amongst the best of his later works.

No. 27. "Architecture." L. Alma-Tadema, A.R.A.

No. 28. "Sculpture." . L. ALMA-TADEMA, A.R.A.

(No.,29, " Pdinting," sketched overleaf.)

No. 29. "Painting." L. ALMA-TADEMA, A.R.A.

The schemes of colour may be shortly indicated as—in "Archi'tecture," robes of low-toned green and slate colour against red of brick; in "Sculpture," cool tones of white marble on the sphinx-like face, set against glare of out-door heat; in "Painting," gold in the twined hair of the beautiful model, green and grey in the draperies of the Greek painters and in the dark mosaic floor. In No. 27, the grey-haired Roman, in his face and manner, has the puzzled expression of many modern architects.

No. 30. "Cherrics." L. ALMA-TADEMA, A.R.A.

A girl with fair hair leaning forward on a couch covered with a tiger rug—cherries on a table, reflected on its smooth surface. This picture was painted for and presented to, the "Cercle," an artistic club in Antwerp.

The next panel is partly devoted to the works of JAMES TISSOT: No. 31, "Spring", No. 34, "July" (entitled, "specimen of a portrait"); No. 35, "Autumn;" No. 33, "Evening"; and No. 32, "Croquet."

Above is a portrait of Dr. Russell (the Times correspondent in the Crimea), painted by the well-known artist of Vanity Fair.

No. 37. "William Russell, Esq., LL.D." C. PELLEGRINI. In the next panel are four portraits by W. B. RICHMOND:

No. 38. "Nial Darmid Campbell."

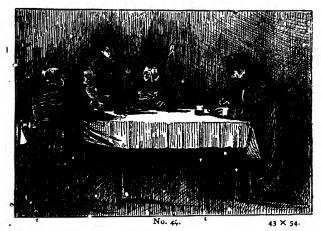

No. 41. "Elspeth Angela "Gampbell."

No. 39. "Mrs. Frederick, Faner" No. 40. "W. Stewart, Esq.

The next pictures are six works by ALPHONSE LEGROS. The first (No. 42,  $20 \times 17$ ), sketched on our frontispiece, is the study of c head painted before the students of the Slade School of Fine Art.

No. 43. "The Glose of Day"; dreary autumn, an old man resting by two weather-beaten trees. ALPHONSE LEGROS.

The contral picture of the group is-

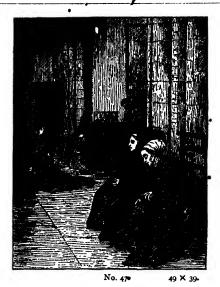

No. 44. "Le Repas des Pauvres." ALPHONSE LEGROS.

No. 45. "Study in Monochrome for a Saint Sebastian"; full-length life-size. ALPHONSE LEGRO.

No. 46. "Study of a Head." ALPHONSE LEGROS.

No. 47. "Interior of a Church in Normandy." A. LEGROS.

The powerful rendering, and pathetic character, of Nos. 43, 44, and 47, form one of the features of the exhibition.

Next are four subjects by Ferdinand Heilbuth; the principal one is sketched below.

No. 49. "Roman Orphans." F. HEILBUTH.

Cardinal in bright red robe, orphans in white uniform, broad expanse of dusty ground.

Mr. Heilbuth's other subjects are three upright pictures with , single figures, viz.:— .

No. 48, entitled "In the Fields"; No. 50, "On the Sea"; and No. 51, "On the River."

The following is a sketch of one of Mr. Whistler's portraits, which is now hung on the south wall; the costume of the original is a delicate grey.

No. 22. "Arrangement in White and Black." JAMES WHISTLER.

Below the foregoing are four landscapes—No. 52, "Harmony in Blue and Yellow"; No. 53, "Necturne in Blue and Silver"; No. 56, "Nocturne in Blue and Gold"; and No. 57, "Nocturne in Grey and Gold"—landscapes of great subtlety and charin passed too lightly by the majority of visitors. Note the delicate harmony of a night study on the Thames (No. 56); and a winter night in the snow (No. 57). This group is relieved in colour by a little Japanese subject, No. 54, "Variation in Flesh-colour and Green"; four girls on a balcony overlooking a river; flowers in the foreground.

Next is a landscape of great beauty and suggestiveness; well placed at the angle of the large gallery.

No. 58. "In the Valley"; a pastoral. C. G. LAWSON.

"The elements of the composition," writes the artist, "were taken from the village of Meifod, in North Wales, but I have endeavoured to epitomise the characteristics of the locality rather than to paint any particular spot. The aim has been the realisation of a feeling of pastoral calm, and to produce the effect by an almost monochromic scheme of colour, choosing that part of the day when all dramatic light is absent."

I mis is propagily the pest landscape in the exhibition; it is to be eached and published by the proprietors of  $L^2Art$ .

At this end of the gallery are the five works by G. F. WATTS, R.A.:—

No. 59, "Ophelia"; study of a girl, half-length, with fair dishevelled hair and sad, weary face, a suggestive and thoroughly unconventional rendering of Ophelia; No. 60, "Portrait of W. Strickland Cookson, Esq."; No. 68, "Sir Galahad" (a small picture, on the right, of a knight in armour and a white horse); No. 61, "Mischief"; and No. 62, "Time and Death"; the two latter occupying nearly the whole of the north end of the gallery.

. No. 61. "Mischief." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

Love entangled; a large decorative composition, the prevailing colours in which are orange and blue, with pink of roses and green of hills. A tangle of roses and thorns in the foreground.

No. 62. "Time and Death." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

An allegory of Time, Death, and Justice; heroic figures, young and fair, similar in scale and treatment to the "Love and Death," exhibited in the same place last year. Time, scythe in hand, marching steadily forward with strong, even tread; Death, pale and sorrowful, her lap full of withered flowers. Robes of low-toned red and green, background of dark blue; at the feet of the figures is seen the portion of a globe and clouds.

This picture and the "Love and Death" of last year form part of a series on which Mr. Watts has been engaged for some years; subjects which could never have been seen or exhibited to advantage at Burlington House.

The next group consists of five pictures by C. E. Hallé, the first of which is sketched overleaf.

No. 65. "A Rain Cloud." C. E. HALLÉ.

A life-size figure, being an "allegorical representation of rain as a reviving rather than a destructive element." A rainbow is indicated through the shower. The original treatment and transparent qualities of this picture cannot easily be indicated in line.

On either side are four portraits, viz. :--

No. 63. "Mrs. Dalyell."

No. 64. "Lord Reay."

No. 67. "H. P. de Lapasture, Esq."

No. 66. "Mrs. Poynter," in grey dress with coral necklace and een wreath.

The choice of colour and painting of this last portrait are especially noticeable.

No. 69. "The Peer." ARTHUR F. PAYNE.

"How weak, how tender
Is the pale heir to pomp and greatness,
The fragile link 'twixt death and dignity."

A portrait picture with tapestry background, and a bearskin rug upon the ground.

[Door.]

Next in order on the right of the doorway are two small, classically conceived subjects. No. 70 is a landscape, an Italian hillside in summer green, in which two figures are introduced with great skill and harmony of effect; the sketch overleaf fairly indicates the composition. In. No. 71 the figures are on a larger scale.

No. 70. "Coming home with the Goats." WALTER MACLAREN.

No. 71. "Mother and Child." WALTER MACLAREN.

Next on the line is a low-toned landscape with a solitary woman wending home in the wind—

No. 72. "March Weather." . G. H. BOUGITTON.

A dreary hillside, hardly relieved by the first buds of spring; over the brow of the hill we see the roof of a cottage and part of a windmill Mr. Boughton's most important landscape is in the East Gallery (No. 115, p. 39).

No. 73. "Portrait of Her Majesty the Queen of Denmark." CANON.

The next picture is the one work by R. Graham, whose painting, "The Tirewoman," may be remembered in the Royal Academy last year.

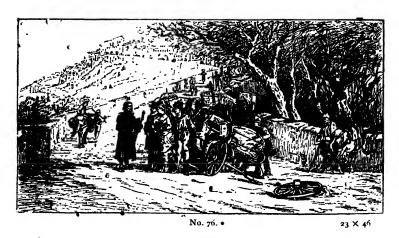

No. 75. "A Mudlark." THOMAS GRAHAM.

A fair little, social, crab left high and dry at ebb tide; a problem of civilisation before the days of school boards.

No. 74. "A Good Resolve." J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

No. 76. "A Carriage Accident." CARL SCHLOESSER.

Sunny Italian landscape in February; English travellers who have met with an accident addressing themselves to the local priest in their difficulties. Painted in Bordighera.

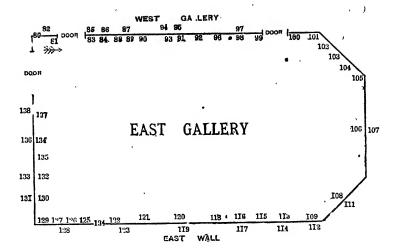

No. 77. "Portrait of Evelina," daughter of Sir Nathaniel de Rothschild, Bart., M.P. Mrs. Louise Jopling.

Child in blue velvet; varieties of pigeons on the ground.

Last in this gallery are—No. 78, "A Study"; and No. 79, "Portrait of Mrs. Charles Beat; Pownall"; by JOHN COLLIER.

The first pictures in this gallery (which is now hung with olivegreen instead of red) are three portraits by Lady LINDSAY (of Balcarres): No. 80, "H.R.H. the Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne"; No. 81, "Lady Henry Scott"; and No. 82, "Mrs. Fairs."

[Door.]

No. 83. "Study of a Head." CHARLES COUSINS.

No. 84. "Lewes: a late Autumn Evening." G. A. F. GRACE.

Next are three works by R. SPENCER STANHOPE: two decorative figures of "Night" and "Morning" (Nos. 85 and 87); in the first, rays of real gold dart from the lamp of "Morning", the third, his principal work, "The Shullamite," No. 86, is sketched on next page.

- No. 88. "Study of a Man's Head." ACHILLE MAZZONI.
- No. 89, "Twilight by the River Mouth, Onegliu": No. 92, VOlive Gathering on the Riviera"; landscapes by George Howard.
- No. 90, "Peach Blossoms, Capri"; No. 91; "A Moorish Villa"; landscapes by EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 86. "The Shullamite." R. SPENCER STANHOPE.

"If thou know not, O thou fairest among women, go thy way forth by the footsteps of the flock, and feed thy kids beside the shepherds' tents."—Song of Solomon.

Next are two works by FREDERICK LEIGHTON, R.A.: the first, No. 94, a portrait of "Miss Stewart Hodgson," in plum-coloured velvet dress; and below it, No. 93, a small study of a girl's head; full face, with dark hair.

No. 95. "Venus and Cupid." Miss EVELYN PICKERING.
No 96. "Bertie: Study of a Child." Mrs. C. WYLIE.

No. 97. "The Olive Harvest, Algeria." EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 98. "Blowing up for Rain on a Surrey Common."

W. B. GARDENER.

No. 99. "A Study of a Child." Mrs. Anderson.
[Door.]

. The dimensions of each of the above are  $46 \times 18$ .

The north end of this gallery is occupied by ten works by E. BURNE-JONES; the first six (sketched on opposite page) were painted in 1867-68; they form a series typical of Day and Night and the Four Seasons. The prevailing colours are—in No. 100, pale maize and white; in Nos. 101 and 102, green; in No. 103, red; in No. 104, green and grey; and in No. 105, blue.

The central picture is the well-known "Laus Veneris," looking very brilliant in colour on the olive-green wall.

No. 106. "Laus Veneris." E. Burne-Jones.
Painted in 1873-75.

This picture has been so often described* that we need only record the facts of colour and composition to aid the memory.

The first figure on the left hand is in red robe with light brown bood, the second in dark green, the third in blue with scarlet cap, the fourth in pink, and the fifth, the queen, in robe of orange or vermillion. The knights in armour riding past the window strike white against the mass of surrounding colour, and against the tapestry on the right, which represents the triumph of Venus.

No. 107. "Luna." E. Burne-Jones.

The next painting is one of almost equal importance as a composition to the "Laus Veneris," and even finer in qualities of colour.

No. 108. "Le Chant d'Arrour." E. Burne-Jones.
Painted in 1873.

" Hélas! je sais un chant d'amcur, Triste ou gai tour à tour."

The central figure is in white, with fair, waving hair; the knight on the ground on the left has red sleeves under his armour; the figure on the right has a red robe; dark green landscape and deep glow of colour over foreground of flowers.

No. 109. "Pan and Psyche." E. Burne-Jones.

Psyche, in despair at Love's loss, casts herself into the sea.

"But the kind river even yet did deem
That she should live, and with all gentle care
Cast her ashore within a meadow fair
Upon the other side, where Shepherd Pan
Sat looking down upon the water wan."

Story of Cupid and Psyche, 'Earth'y Paradise.'

" Pan and Psyche." E. BURNE-JONES.

No. 112. "Prona." JOHN MELHUISH STRUDWICK.

"Next Cynthia bright

Peona kiss'd, and bless'd with fair good night.

Her brother kiss'd her too, and knelt adown

Before his goddess, in a blissful swoon.

She gave her fair hand to him, and, behold,

Before three swiftest kisses he had told,

They vanish'd far away! Peona went

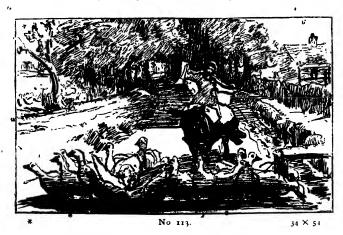

Hence through the gloomy wood in wonderment."

KEATS' Indyntion.

No. 110. "Portrait of his Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.T."

VON ANGELI.

No. 111. "Portrait of Mary Leslie." Sir JOHN LESLIE, Bart, M.P.

No. 113: "Michaelmas?" P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A. Girl with blue shawl; strong effect of reflected light on wet road.

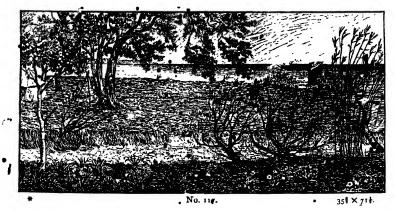

No. 114. "A Grocer's Shop in the Tyrol," CARL SCHLOESSER.

A scene in one of the dark-vauted interiors in the Tyrol; old man and two boys gravely occupied in weighing sugar.

No. 115. "The Rivals." G. H. BOUGHTON.
Sunset glow upon the quarry; figures in subdued tones of colour.

No. 117. "Ariadne abandoned by Theseus." THOMAS ARMSTRONG.

Low-toned landscape; effect of early dawn.

No. 116. Three figures on a marble seat, with orange blossoms and marigolds. THOMAS ARMSTRONG.

No. 118. "A Study of a Child." HELENE RICHTER.

No. 119. "The Fate of Persephone." WALTER CRANE.

Of Enna, where Preserpine, gathering flowers,
Herself a fairer flower, by gloomy Dis
Was gathered."—Paradise Lost, book iv.

The artist communicates the following as to the intention of the picture, which has been to dwell rather on the symbolical aspect of the myth. Persephone, embodying the genius of Spring-the new budding fairness of life—overshadowed by Winter, dimly anticipates her destiny, as Ardoneus, half lover and half fiend, inexorable as Time and Death, with his horses of darkness, rises from the chasm in the earth to bear her away to his shadowy home, whence only she returns to the world in her season. This recurrence is suggested by the design of the wheel of the chariot, in which the figures of the four seasons resolve.

Across the chasm grows a little flowering tree of pomegranate, the fruit of which, tasted by Persephone, seals her fate in Hades; and at her feet, and in her basket, is the fateful narcissus, by which she was ensnared.

Her attendant maidens, as more human and mortal, are frightened and surprised at the sight of the terrible horses that trample the flowers in the "fair field of Enna." A sudden cloud overshadows the spring landscape, and a wind blights the blossoms with its chilly breath, "ruffling up the edges of the sea." Etna flames above the awestruck city, and, on the edge of the chasm far off, a little grieving figure stands for the sorrow of Demeter.

In this picture the horses are black; the prevailing colours are yellow, orange, and brown in the draperies; white of flowers and blue of hills.

No. 120. "Passing Days." J. M. STRUDWICK.

An allegory representing the days of a man's life passing in procession before him. The outline will suffice to indicate the composition; the idea is best conveyed in the artist's own words.

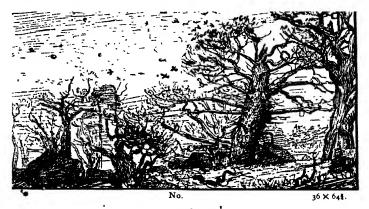

"The days of childhood, represented by children's figures, have flown into the mist of the past. The days of youth follow, and the figures hold back their hands to the man, to signify the memories the past recalls to him. The incidents of the man's life are indicated on the frieze which runs through the picture. The day just gone is best remembered, and the memory of its grief makes the day at present passing to be sad, and to walk on thoms. Then the future comes, days of good and evil, burden-bearing days; a day that fears, and seems to see, approaching death. After, follow the last and oldest days, that heed nothing but the roughness of the way. Then last of all death comes out of the clouds and mist of the future. On one side of the centre figure, Time is seated on a cloud, and puts his scythe between the man and the past days; on the other side Love watches the procession sadly as it passes by."

Note the patient care exhibited in this elaborate little painting, and the sad poetic vein in which it has been conceived.

No. 121. "A Pastoral"; landscape with cows. MARK FISHER.

No. 122: "Village Coquettes." P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A. Two girls and two men near a saw-pit, in evening light.

No. 123. ("Hearse clamouring o'er the uplifted head,
The rooks, assembling, seek their wind-rock'd bed.") A. S. WORTLEY.

No. 124. "Vesuvius from above Pompcii." EDGAR BARCLAY.

A small upright picture showing the eruption; painted April 26, 1872.

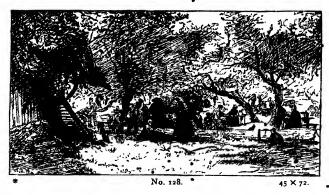

No. 125. "Birds." Albert Moore.

No. 126. "A Study." ALBERT MOORE.

A very small, upright picture of a girl in robes of yellow and bronze green, against a background of grey; on her shoulder she holds a fan of gelden orange Aue, which strikes the highest note of colour.

No. 127. "The River at Streatley"; cows in a Otto Weber.

No. 128. "Fête Day in a Cider Orchard, Normandy."
W. J. HENNESSEY.

No. 129. "A Village Street by the Sea." PHILIP NORMAN.

No. 130. "The Eavesdropper"; two girls by a fountain.

A. Welss.

No.131. "Grief"; a study from life. F. MOSCHELES.

No. 136. "Pity is akin to love." Mrs. LOUISE JOPLING.
Girl in white dress; blue china plates on a shelf, not clearly indicated in the sketch.

No. 137. "Portrait of Mrs., Talkot." R. LEHMANN.

No. 138. "Burning Love Letters." R. LEHMANN.

"I watch'd the light flame falling fast,
I saw the ashes falle and die,
So bright at first, so dark at last,
Methought it was love's history."

The remaining pictures on this wall are three paintings by OTTO WEBER, well known for his studies of cattle:—

No. 132. "Landscape with Cattle."

No. 133. "The Interrupted Chapter,"

No. 134. "A Study of a White Cow."

No. 135. "A Quiet Corner of England." • PHILIP NORMAN.

VESTIBULE.

No. 139: "Henley Regatta." WALTER FIELD.

In this elaborate picture, which has been some years in preparation, and which contains portraits of many well-known rowing men, both professional and amateur, the intention of the artist has been to subordinate the figures as far as possible to landscape effect; in short, to make a great portrait of the whole scene, and to produce a picture which should be historically interesting from its portraits, and at the same time a picturesque record of the scene in summer on the Thames. The exceptionally gay and festive aspect of Henley Regatta, as here represented, will be interesting to those who have never witnessed it, and the portraits will be an attraction to rowing men.

The view is taken from just below Phyllis Court Gardens, looking up the river towards the town with its old church and bridge, the well-known inns, the Angel and the Red Lion, with the Jesus College, Cambridge, and London Rowing Club flags hanging out of window, and the Grand Stand. The time is the interval between the races, when the boats are dropping down to their stations. On the left we see the "Jesus Eight," and above it on the towing-path stands the Rev. E. Warre, of Eton, waiting for his boys (whom we see higher up the river) to run down to the start. In the boat with the awning coming down stream is J. W. Chitty, the university umpire, with Tom Hughes in the stern. In the punt behind them are Trower, Bob Leslie, Corry, and Playford. The figure standing up in the boat, in the foreground, in the middle of the picture, is Darbishire, and in the same boat is E. B. Michell in a scarlet coat, the Magdalen uniform.

In the front boat (a pair-oar outrigger) are the portraits of F. Willan and W. B. Woodgate, a good example of the thorough, study of the character of rowing men and their equipments, the raison d'être, so to speak, of the whole picture. Above Woodgate is Finch, and just above him J. Chambers in blue; in a boat, a little to the right, is Walter Bovill, and next to him Sir Patrick Colquboun; the man standing lighting his pipe is Herbert Steward, Secretary of the Leander Rowing Club.

Portraits of other rowing men are easily to be distinguished, viz.: F. Gulston, Rev. R. Risley, Farie, J. B. Close, J. H. D. Goldie, R. Cobb, E. A. Clowes, &c. Two well-known professionals will also be identified, Harry Kelley (sculler), in the distance, just above Mr. Darbishire's head; and J. H. Clasper (boat-builder), punting on the right. Other portraits, too numerous to mention (including, as the artist desires to point out, the portrait of a rainbow, which does not appear in the sketch, but which "marks the usual weather of the Regatta week"), are dispersed over the picture, which, if not judged from too keen a critical standpoint, must be pronounced a

PREFACE.

THE purpose of "GROSVENOR NOTES" is to be descriptive, rather than critical; to form a record of the summer exhibitions at the GROSVENOR GALLERY which should be interesting and useful for reference.

The illustrations are intended to convey an idea of the composition, rather than of the effect, of the pictures, and are not intended as works of art. The most interesting and useful are those reproduced in facsimile from sketches received from the artists; they are to be distinguished throughout the book by an asterisk (*) under the illustration.

The Editor is indebted to the artists who have assisted him with sketches, and to Sir Coutts Lindsay for the facilities afforded for the production of the book.

• The illustrations are produced by Mr. Alfred Dawson.

NOTICE TO ARTISTS.—Sketches for "GROSVENOR NOTES" (Summer Exhibition) may be sent to Mr. Henry Blackburn, at his residence, 103 Victoria Street, S.W., or to the care of the Secretary of the Grosvenor Gallery, on or before the 15th of April in each year. Exhibitors are requested to give early intimation to Mr. Blackburn of the completion of any important work.

** The copyright of pictures sketched in this book is reserved by their respective owners.

WYLIE, Mrs., 1, p. 7; 206, p. 52.

The third annual exhibition of works by living artists contains 288 paintings, water-colours, etchings, and drawings, and 18 works sculpture and terracotta.

Entering the large WEST GALLERY (the "Red Room") by the middle door, we find the principal positions on the south wall occupied by a landscape by Cecil Lawson, a large water-colour by Herkomer, and, in the centre, an upright decorative panel by W. B. Richmond, the new Slade Professor of Fine Art at Oxford. The east wall, the head of the gallery, is occupied by Mr. Watts, as last year; on the west wall the prominent positions are held by C. E. Hallé, P. R. Morris, G. H. Boughton, Whistler, and Legros. In this gallery are also works by Sir F. Leighton, P.R.A., J. E. Millais, R.A., and other members of the Royal Academy.

No. 1. "A Labour of Love." Mrs. WYLIE.

A figure of Cupid gathering roses amongst thoras

No. 2. "Portrait of Herr Henschel." L. Alma-Tadema, A.R.A.

A small painting of the composer seated at a Byzantine piano. This is the only contribution by this artist.

No. 3, "Via Bianca, Capri." No. 4. "Archway in Algiers." Sir F. LEIGHTON, P.R.A.

There are several similar small studies by Sir F. Leighton on the left hand near Mr. Linton's pictures.

The next panel is filled by seven paintings by W. B. RICHMOND, four of which are portraits of children: No. 5, "Sitting in Judgment 1...No. 7, "Daisy Houldsworth"; No. 9, "A Study of Light and Shade"; and No. 10, "The End of the Story." No. 9 is perhaps the best.

No. 6. "Portrait of Miss Ada White Thompson."

The next is a small classically conceived picture—

No. 8. "Phidyle." W. B. KICHMOND.

"Cœlo supinas si tuleris manus Nascente luna, rustica Phidyle." HORACE, Ode xxiii.

The nude figure of Phidyle stands with raised hands on the steps of an altar raised to Athené, which is laden with fruit and flowers.

No. 11. "Portrait of Lieutenant-Colonel T. White Thompson."

Mr. Richmond's other works, are "Sarpedon" (No. 22) and the bronze figure of an athlete; sketched on page 32.

On either side of the door are two powerful heads, in water-colour, by Carl Haag, one of which is sketched on our title-page.

No. 12. "A Nubian Warrior in Chain Armour." CARL HAAG.

No. 14. "An African Beauty"; with purple turban. CARL HAAG.

Under No. 12 is a small sketch in a Moorish courtyard-

No. 13. "Rekes of the Past: Arabs in the Museum of Algiers."
F. DICEY.

West Gallery.

On the right of the door is the first of seven landscapes by Cecil Lawson (his principal works are No. 19 and No. 141, sketched on pages 11 and 39).

No. 15. "A Morning Mist"; sheep grazing. CECIL LAWSON.

Rus in urbe. The actual spot where this sketch was taken is Trafalgar Square, Chelsea, with the tower of St. Luke's Church seen through the mist. It is one of those views and effects in the heart of London which artists cannot be too strongly urged to study. There is another above, on the right, which we may notice next.

No. 16. "Charing Cross Bridge: Midnight."

A. STUART-WORTLEY.

Barges coming up with the tide. Note the distant night effect through Waterloo Bridge with the lamps on the Embankment.

No. 17. "Psyche's Toil in Venus' Garden." E. MATTHEW HALE.

About her, and made merry with her shame,
And laughed to see her trembling eagerness,
And how she guarded well some tiny heap
But just begun, from their long raiment's sweep."

The Stery of Cupid and Psyche.

The subject of this graceful picture is taken from Morris' Earthly Paradise. Psyche is pursuing her hopeless task of sorting a heap of seeds in one day; the attendants of Venus mock her weary toil. The scheme of colour is blue and pale maize; in the background is a dark sky; the garden is shut in by a cypress hedge, which appears white in the artist's sketch.

Above are three pictures by Mr. W. G. Wills, the dramatist. The first is a low-toned, life-size, picture, of which the sketch gives a good idea.

No. 20. "Ophelia and Laertes." W. G. WILLS.
"Here is rosems, y, that 's for remembrance; Pry'thee, love, remember."

Next is No. 21, "The Spirit of the Shell"; and, on the right, on the same wall, No. 25, "Nymph and Young Satyr." Near the above is No. 23, "A Decorative Panel," by C. C. COLEMAN.

Returning to the line, the first are the two landscapes by Cecil Lawson, sketched on the opposite page.

No. 18. "Twixt Sun and Moon." CECIL LAWSON. Sunset effect over wet land; the moon rising in mist.

The next is a larger and more important picture than the foregoing; it was first painted in 1874.

No. 19. "Kent." CECIL LAWSON.

A view of the hop-gardens of Kent, at Wrotham, near Sevenbaks, with the red-tiled roofs and hoasts, seen under an afternoon sun. There is a broad stretch of autumnal landscape, and, on the horizon, a few white clouds in a luminous sky; in the foreground is one figure on a small scale, a blue-painted plough, poppies and cornflowers. The time chosen is when the season is at its fullest—the corn harvest just reaped, the orchard fruit ripe to redness, and the golden hops just ready for the pickers.

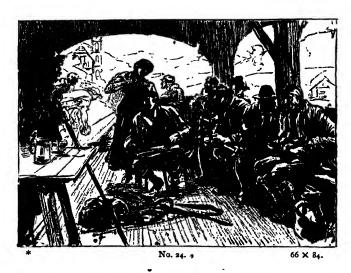

No. 22. "Sarpedon." W. B. RICHMOND.

"To the soft arms of silent sleep and death
They to his friends the mournful charge shall bear."

In the centre of the wall is the above decorative and poetical composition of Sarpedon borne by Sleep and Death.

Sarpedon, king of Lycia, killed at Troy, was carried to the home of his ancestors by Sleep and Death, to be there buried. The, picture represents the scene by night, a half hidden moon casts the sea in shadow, and glimmers over the three figures. The panel is almost in monochrome.

Next is the large water-colour drawing by Mr. Herkomer, which is painted on the scale, and with the power, of oil-painting; a tour de force in water-colour art.*

No. 24. "Light, Life, and Melody." H. HERKOMER.

The scene is in the Bavarian Highlands, where peasants are assembled in the evening in the bowling alley of a mountain Bierhaus, listening to a visitor playing on their national instrument, the zither.

This picture is not only interesting to us technically, as an experiment in water-colours, but also as an exact rendering of the couleur loçale. It occupies one of the most important places in the gallery.

* It is interesting to notice in the Grosvenor Gallery the frequent juxtaposition of dils and water-colours, without loss of power to the latter, or detriment to either. (See No. 109, and other examples, hung amongst oil-paintings in the East Galkery.)

The last picture on this wall is one of five by R. W. Macbeth; his principal works are at the other end of the gallery.

No. 26. "Dressing Mustard Seed in a Norfolk Farmstead." R. W. MACBETH.

Two women at work in a shed, their heads tied with shawls; dogs lying on the ground; a small picture forcibly painted.

On the west wall are two decorative works, Nos. 27 and 28. The first is a scheme of green and orange, very subtle in the harmony of tists and complete as a decorative panel, suggestive of calm southern life and atmosphere; an ideal scene, classic and unsestrained.

No. 27. "The Fountain." THOMAS ARMSTRONG.

The figure stooping down has a dark green dress; the background, the marble wall of a garden and orange trees.

No. 28. "The Sirens." WALTER CRANE. (Sketched on next page.)

This picture is not intended as a literal illustration of the Odyssey, but rather to be decorative and allegorical. The ship is not that of Ulysses, but a suggestion of the ship of life, becalmed in glowing mists; the mariners charmed by the spell of those fateral sirens that (some say) "still sing to men."

No. 28. "The Sirens." WALTER CRANE.

A scheme of delicate colours in which pale orange and blue predominate.

No. 29. "Portrait of Miss Grace Ward." HERBERT WILSON.

Next is a small single figure subject-

No. 30. In a cool stream amid the lonely hills, Seeks some refreshment for her weary limbs."

No. 32. "Music." W. E. F. BRYTTEN.

A brilliant combination of colours and Greek robes; an animated and classic composition, in which the artist has sought to depict the richness and beauty of line of antique draperies. There is a background of purple screens and a glimpse of blue sky.

No. 31. "An Arabian Night." ALBERT GOODWIN.

A midnight procession through the streets of an Eastern town, with torches; mosques, towers, and a calm sky.

In the centre of the panel is a large decorative and allegorical work by the painter of "A Rain Cloud" last year.

No. 33. "To God and my love's right arm." C. E. HALLE.

This picture, which is life-size, represents a lady and a knight ir armour who is taking her from her home; she stands under the portico of a palace in ancient Venice, half hesitating as she steps into a boat. The painting is powerful and effective; the fair hair of the girl and the flesh tints are in a luminous key, opposed in colour to purple marble columns, steel armour, and green sea.

No. 34. "Kitty." Child with dog; a portrait. .
W. WREFORD MAJOR.

"My beloved is gone down into his garden, to the beds of No. spices, to feed in the gazdens, and J. M. STRUDWICK. to gather lilies."—Song of Solo-

A small, delicately painted, picture; the figure in blue robe against a mass of lilies with bluish stems, forming a charming scheme of colour. An allegory; called "Passing Days," will be remembered, by this artist, last year.

No. 36. "Head of a Girl at Lerici." O. COSTA.

No. 37. "Olive Gathering." EDGAR BARCLAY.

A little Algerian study; Arabs at work on a hillside.

Next are two works—small, decorative pictures—by C. FAIRFAX MURRAY: the first a panel in three compartments (No. 38), "Garland Makers"; the second (No. 39) "A Pastoral," ten seated figures in rich costumes.

No. 40. "Isabella." J. M. STRUDWICK.

"Piteous she looked on dead and senseless things, Asking for her lost basil piteously."

The picture represents that moment in the poem where the brothers (who are seen through the window), having stolen away the basil pot, leave but the empty flower stand and scattered leaves and memories behind; and so break the last link that bound Isabella to life. Isabella, with fair hair and robe of a deep rose colour, is set against a background of blue.

There is probably no more carefully studied work in the gallery than these two pictures by Mr. Strudwick.

No. 41. "Gathering Orange Blossoms." Mrs. M. S. STILLMAN.

West Gallery.

Next are two poetic pictures, harmoniously contrasted on the wall both in colour and sentiment.

No. 42. "Night and Sleep." Miss E. PICKERING.

In this picture the composition is again decorative, purple and grey; the colour is relieved by the poppies that fall through the sky on a sleeping world.

No. 43. "Shipbuilding." P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A.

Shipwrights busy causking the seams of a vessel; a sunny picture full of air and light; a pale sky and running river near the sea. There is a curious, fairy-like aspect about this scene, as if the boat had been built in a night. The colour is particularly harmonious.

A small, rick, painting is hung next above, to which the sketch does not do justice.

No. 44. "The Wise Woman's Briar." LOUISA, Marchioness of WATERFORD.

"There is an old superstition about arches of briar hung out along the hedge-row-Cures of diseases of childhood were supposed to be effected by passing the child under the briar at sunrise facing the rising sun—this had to be performed by the wise woman."

Next are two small landscapes by WALTER CRANE-

No. 46. "Bamburgh Castle and Church from the North-West."

No. 47. "Bamburgh Castle from the Budle Hills."

In the centre panel are six pictures—

No. 48. "The Lady Hildred." J. M. JOPLING.

No. 50. "Ruth, Daughter of W. Wakefield, Esq."; seated at an embroidery frame. Miss L. STARR.

No. 52. "The Unanswered Question." R. B. BROWNING.

A hermit ir a cave examining a skull.

'No. 45. "The Tired Dancer." J. R. WEGUELIN.

This picture represents a Roman dancing girl, who, tired with her exertions, has stolen away from the banquet hall above, and fallen asleep on a marble bench under the colonnade. Daylight shows the guests leaving the feast, and the girl still sleeping. The girl has a bright orange red robe; a Nonze figure on the pedestal.

On the next page is a sketch of-

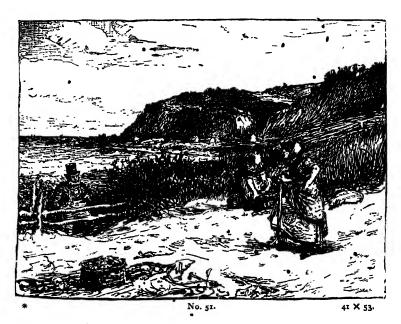

No. 49. "Alfred Tennyson, Poet Laureate.", H. HERKOMER.

A water-colour drawing, rather larger than life; the latest portrait of the poet. An etching is shortly to be published.

No. 49. "Alfred Tennyson, Poet Laureate." H. HERKOMER.

In the centre is Mr. Broughton's large picture. A widow and her daughter, digging potatoes on a patch of land on the sea-shore, stopping to talk to an old fisherman. A quiet, harmonious landscape; the effect of which is well expressed in the sketch.

No. 51. "The Widow's Acre." G. H. BOUGHTON.

Next, on the line, is a fine portrait-

No. 53. "Portrait of a Lady." J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

A three-quarter length portrait, life-size, standing, in black dress; the picture lighted by a coral necklack and red and yellow roses.

In the next panel are three pictures by Whistler, one an admirable portrait of a lady in dark dress standing hat in hand—

No. 54. "Portrait of Miss Rosa Corder"; entitled "An Arrangement in Brown and Black." J. M. WHISTLER.

No. 55. "Portrait of Miss Connie Gilchrist"; "The Gold Girl: a Harmony in Yellow and Gold." J. M. WHISTLER.

No. 56 "The Pacific"; "Harmony in Green and Gold."

J. M. WHISTLER.

A view in the bay of San Francisco; ships at anchor off shore; one of the best of Mr. Whistler's works.

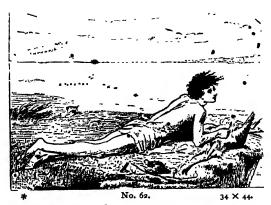

On either side of the foregoing are two little landscapes by CECIL LAWSON—

No. 57, "A Silver Mist," a river barge sailing at night; and No. 58, "A Golden Mist"; Sussex downs. Windmills and one small figure

On the right, in the same panel, is a single figure—'

No. 59. "A Study of Drapery," ALBERT MOORE.

A girl standing in yellow dress and orange head-dress; a study of colour.

No. 62. "The Inventor of Sails." F. SMALLFIELD.

"The Athenian youth Dædalus pauses while examining the structure of a heron's wing, to observe the action of the sea-gulls in full flight."

No. 60. "Portrait of Mrs. Lane Fox." .R. LEHMANN.

No. 61. "Convent Dole." R. LEHMANN.

The centre of this panel is occupied by a large work by Mr. Legros. The figure is life-size, the head reclining on a rock, with a dark background of clouds. The sketch will serve to give a general idea of the effect of the picture; the colour is sombre and harmonious throughout.

No. 63. "Facob's Dream." A. LEGROS.

No. 64. "Study of a Head"; executed before the students of the Slade School. A. LEGROS.

Above is a very life-like portrait (No. 65), by CARLO PELLEGRINI, of "R. W. Macbeth," three of whose pictures are close at hand.

In the next panel are, first, two small paintings by Mr. P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A., the first of which is an interesting example of the harmonious treatment of accessories in portraiture; the figures in the landscape, No. 66, form a pleasant and very natural picture, which is not less pleasing for being on a small scale.

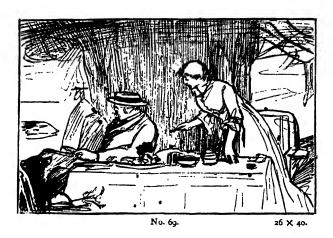

No. 66. "Autumn"; a lady and child in wooded landscape.

No. 67. "The Holiday."

Four girls playing at skipping; a summer sketch.

Next are Mr. Macbeth's pictures-

No. 68. "Dog Days"; a lady reading under a tree; with two dogs for company. R. W. MACBETII.

· No. 69. * Our First Tiff." R. W. MACBETH.

Breakfast under a tree; a summer morning effect; very warm and true in tone. The above sketch, by the artist, is a remarkable instance of the power of conveying an idea of a picture in a few lines. The lady is in light summer dress.

No. 70. "Sheep-washing in Droughty Weather."
R. W. MACBETH.

No. 71. "Little Elaine." Mrs. Anderson.

There are four contributions by Mr. Watts. The first is one of a series of imaginative compositions, on which he has been engaged for some years.

No. 73. "Paolo and Francesca." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

"These two together coming, That seem so light before the wind?"

An ideal picture of love and suffering, in illustration of Dante's poem. This picture is remarkable for beauty of line and harmony of low tones of colour. The figures are pale, against a background of clouds and fiery rain, but without violent contrasts.

Next are two portraits-

No. 75. "The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P.
No. 76. "Little Red Riding Hood."

No. 72. "Decorative Centre Piece for a Ceiling, representing the Seasons." WALTER CRANE.

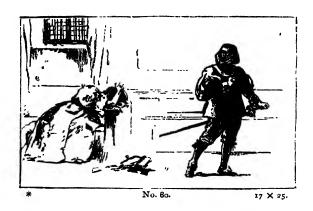

The second large composition by Mr. Watts has been suggested by the legend of Orpheus and Eurydice.

No. 74. "Orpheus and Eurydice." G. F. WATTS Peris.

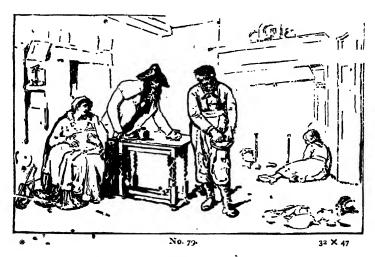

• This design, in which there is more of the dramatic element than in "Paolo and Francesca," depicts Eurydice at the moment when she is about to be swept from the grasp of Orpheus. The general composition and contrasted tones of colour of the two figures at the mouth of Hades form a very powerful and suggestive picture, which can hardly be said to be yet completed.

Next are six small oil paintings of remarkable power and quality, by J. D. Linton, whose water-colours are well known.

No. 80. "False"; man in red dress, jewels on the ground.
J. D. LINTON.

No. 81. "Valentine"; figure in steel armour. J. D. LINTON.

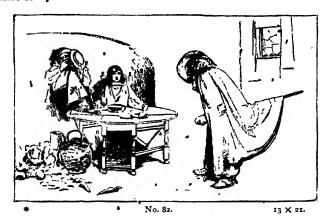

No. 79: 4 Les Émigrés.". J. D. LINTON.

An etching by Rajon, from this fine picture, which is perhaps the best of Mr. Linton's works, is just published by Mr. R. Dunthorne.

No. 77. "A Study"; a lady in black, standing, book in hand.
J. D. LINTON.

No. 78. "The Trumpeter"; seated figure; a fine study of colour and texture. J. D. LINTON.,

The last is—

No. 82. "An Early Scene from 'Gil Blas.'" J. D. LINTON.

A red cloak is the prominent feature of this picture; note the painting of a copper vessel and other details.

[Door.]

No. 83. "Portrait of Mrs. Yates Thompson." JOHN COLLIER.

Next are six small Eastern studies, by Sir F. LEIGHTON, P.R.A.

—No. 84, "Ruins of a Mosque, Damasches"; No. 85, "Study of a Donkey, Damascus"; No. 86, "On the Terrace, Capri"; No. 87, "Sketch near Damascas"; No. 88, "View in Granqda"; No. 89, "Study of a Donkey, Egypt."

No. 90. "Portrait of Signor Piatti." Lady LINDSAY (of Balcarres).

Next are two small pictures by Chevalier EDWARD, DE MAR-INO—No. 91, "H.M. Frigate 'Narcissus' and the Detacled Squadron in the Pacific"; No. 92, "S.S. 'Maskelyne' at Antwerp."

The following are by JAMES TISSOT—No. 93, "Under the Chestnut Tree"; No. 94, "Emigrants"; No. 95, "Rivals"; No. 96, "Orphans"; No. 97, "A Quiet Afternoon"; No. 98, "Going to Business"; No. 99, "The Hammock"; No. 100, "Grossing the Channel."

No. 101. "French Man-of-War in the Harbour of Rhodes."

Chevalier EDWARD DE MARTINO. *

The remaining picture by this artist is sketched on page 35.

No. 102. "Portrait of Miss Erskine Wemyss."

EDWARD CLIFFORD.

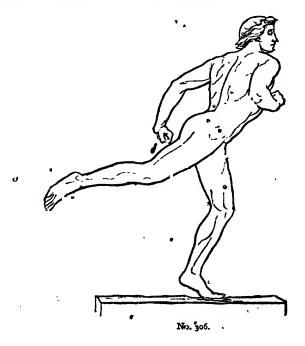

No. 103. "Study of a Head." Sir F. LEIGHTON, P.R.A.

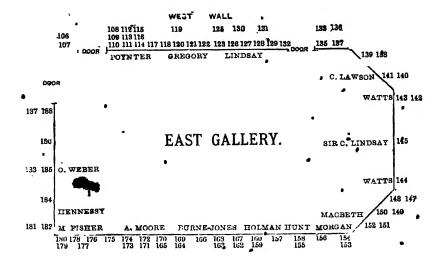

No. 104. "Nicandra." Sir F. LEIGHTON, P.R.A. ,

No. 105. "Enid and Geraint." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

[Door.]

In the middle of this gallery is No. 306, "An Athlete"; life-size statue in bronze: W. B. RICHMOND.

The first picture in this gallery is on the left of the doorway— No. 106. "Study of a Head." A. LEGROS.

No. 107. "The Haunted Mill." CECIL LAWSON.

No. 108. "Portrait of Lady Collier." JOHN COLLIER.

(Sketched opposite.)

No. 109. "Mark Ash, New Forest"; water-colour drawing.
W. KÜMPEL.

No. 110. "By the Severn"; Bewdley. EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 111. "Teaching the Lord's Prayer." LOUISA Marchioness of WATERFORD.

No. 112. "A Cold Morning on the Thames." Chevalier EDWARD DE MARTINO.

It is remarkable that M. de Martino, like M. de Nittis, has chosen this subject, familiar enough to Londoners, but too seldom treated pictorially by our own artists.

Next is a half-length study for Nausicaa, in green embroidered dress, holding a ball—

No. 113. "Nausican." E. J. POYNTER, R.A.

No. 114. "On the North Terrace, Duncomb Park, Yorkshire."
WALTER CRANE.

No. 115. "Between Pont Aven and Tremalo, Brittany."

Baron DE LYONCOURT.

No. 116. "Autumn Evening." T. C. FARRER.

No. 117. "Cutting Oats, Wimille, Artois." C. J. LEWIS.

No. 118. "An April Morning." Mrs. GOSSE.

In the centre of this wall is a very powerful full-length, life-size portrait, seated in official chair—

No. 119. "Thomas Chapman, Esq., F.R.S., F.S.A.," Chairman of the Committee of Lloyd's Register of British and Foreign Shipping. EDWARD JOHN GRÉGORY.

Presented to the Society by the Members of the Committee.

No. 120. "Naworth Castle." WALTER CRANE. View of terrace, with figures on small scale.

No. 121. "Perdita." F. SANDYS.
Study of a head with fair hair and wreaths of flowers.

No. 122. "Dawn near Bocca d'Arno." G. COSTA.

No. 123. "The Twins, Yattendon." Mrs. Gosse.

Next is a decorative picture of weed burning; three figures at work, half concealed by tangle and overgrowth. A scheme of golden brown and grey in delicate gradations.

No. 124. "Weed Burners." DAVID CARR.

No. 125. "Among the Hills." H. R. ROBERTSON.
A landscape in Tyrol; blue mountains and snow-laden river.

. No. 126. "Patio de la Mesquita, Alhambra." J: O'CONNOR.

Next are three more landscapes by EDGAR BARCLAY—No. 127, "A Path over the Quantochs"; sheep and purple heather; No. 128, "The Priory, Kiloe"; and No. 129, "Tending, Sheep."

No. 130. "Portrait of Charles C. Bethune, Esq." Lady LINDSAY (of Balcarres).

No. 131. "A Sea Beach." GEORGE LUCAS.

No. 132. "Patio los Cypresses, Alhambra." J. O'CONNOR.

[Door.]

No. 133. "Portrait of Miss Dawson Damer." • Sir J. LESLIE, Bart.

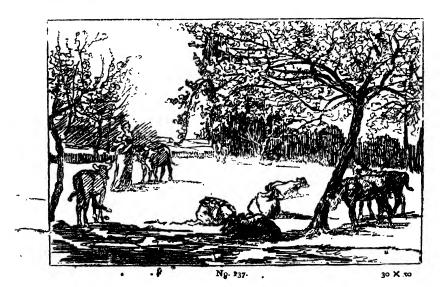

No. 135. "The Priory, Kiloe." EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 136. "A Portrait." E. J. SARTORIS.

No. 134. "Althæa." ALFRED WARD.

Next is the first and the best of three landscapes with cattle by Mark Fisher.

No. 137. "Spring." MARK FISHER.

(See Nos. 173 and 174, on opposite wall.)

No. 138. "Portrait of the Countess of Pembroke."

EDWARD CLIFFORD.

No. 139. "Portrait of the Countess Cowper."
E. J. POYNTER, R.A.

No. 140. "Portrait of Mrs. King." Ed. R. Hughes.

Next is a great study of clouds and wild, waste, land at sunrise, over which birds fly low; a lifting up of clouds after storm.

In this picture the aim of the artist was to produce a sense of tragedy and devastation without the aid of any special incident. The passion of the storm, which has flooded this inland scene during the night, is exhausted, but not wholly spent. The sun, just rising from behind low hills, sheds a gleam over the scene of desolation.

No. 141. " The Morning After." CECAL LAWSON.

The two last pictures sketched (each remarkable as a study of nature) form a curious contrast in subject and treatment.

No. 142. "Portrait of Mrs. Moscheles." F. Moscheles.

No. 143. "Dorothy." •G. F. WATTS, R.A.

A child in claret-coloured dress with a glory of fair hair; perhaps the most charming portrait in the gallery.

No. 144. "A Portrait." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

The centre of the wall, the head of this gallery, is occupied by the life-size figure of Ariadne, sketched below.

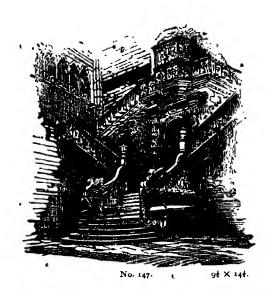

No. 145. "Ariadne." Sir Coutts Lindsay, Bart.

The figure is in white dress, on the sands, with background of blue sea.

No. 146. "Portrait of Mrs. Elmore." C. Cousins.

No. 149. "Portrait of Herman Vezin, Esq." J. FORBES ROBERTSON.

No. 147. * Staircase of Burgos Cathedral." J. O'CONNOR.

No. 148. "Death and the Woodman." P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A.

A small picture; the woodman surprised by Death with scythe in hand." Landscape in evening light.

No. 150. "A Knight and his Daughter." Sir COUTTS LINDSAY, Bart.

No. 151. "A Mosque at Algiers." EDGAR BARCLAY.

Next is a small picture, a study of an old woman, perhaps the best of the artist's works here—

No. 152. "The End of the Journey." R. W. MACBETH.

No. 153. "Portrait of Sir Thomas G. F. Hesketh, Bart."
F. SANDYS.

Mr. Morgan's picture, sketched on next page, is a sunny landscape painted in Normandy, fresh in the green of early spring. The girl in sabots gives milk to the calves from an earthen vessel.

No. 154. " Motherless." F. MORGAN.

Next are two very powerful and realistic studies of old buildings by the waterside, by the Baroness NATHANIEL DE ROTHSCHILD—No. 156, "Vitré, Ille-et-Vilaine, France"; and No. 157, "Scafati, près de Naples."

No. 158. "Fiametta singing." Mrs. M. S. STILLMAN.

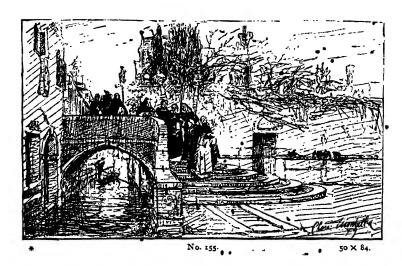

"Love steered my course, while yet the sun rode high, On Scylla's waters to a myrtle grove;

And there my lady, 'mid the shadowings Of myrtle trees, 'mid flowers and grassy space, Singling, I saw with others who sat round."

(Frem Boccaccio, translated by D. G. Rosseiti.)

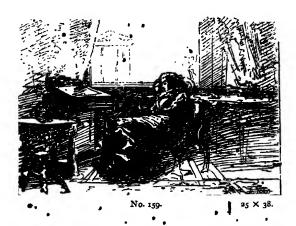

A decorative picture of seven fair women, with background of myrtle trees and distant sea; delightful in quality and colour.

Above is a view of a corner in Venice, painted with great breadth and truth of effect, especially in the suggestion of light and heat in subdued colours.

No. 155. "La Festa di Sant' Antonio, Venice."

Miss Clara Montalba.

No. 159. "Wot at Home." R. P. STAPLES.

Fair-haired lady in blue dress seated at open window.

No. 160. "The Ship." R. HOLMAN HUNT.

"I hear the noise about thy keel,
I hear the bell struck in the night,
I see the cabin window bright,
I see the sailor at the wheel."

The subject of Mr. Holman Hunt's small picture is a night effect on the deck of a steamer, with awning spread across, under which we see the cabin lights and the flaring of the furnace fire; and in contrast is the blue night sky studded with stars.

The principal part of the east wall of this gallery is occupied by a group of the works of Mr. BURNE-JONES; elaborate decorative paintings more akin to the works of the early Italian masters than any modern paintings we are accustomed to see in England.

In the centre is his large picture of "The Annunciation," indicated in outline on the opposite page; on either side is "The Story of Pygmalion," in four upright panels.

The titles are as follows:

No. 167. "The heart desires."

No. 168. "The hand refrains."

No. 169. "The godhead fires."

No. 170. "The soul attains."

In the first, Pygmalion is seen contemplating a group of the three Graces; in the second, he pauses before his unfinished statue; in the third, Venus welcomes the statue to life; in the fourth, Pygmalion kneels before the new creation. The scheme of colour throughout may be described as a subtle and delicate combination of pink, blue, and grey; the drawing and colour, especially in the third picture, where Venus, in a white robe, extends her hands to Galatea, are very refined and beautiful.

In "The Annunciation," the Virgin stands by a well in a soft light robe; the angel is in a robe of dark purplish brown, with bronze green wings; there is a green bay-tree on the left, and the architecture is in delicate toner of brown and grey.

This is the most complete and important of the artist's later works, the public exhibition of which may almost be said to be due to the existence of the Grosvenor Gallery.

Above the group of Mr. Burne-Jones' pictures are four square bronze panels for decoration, which, placed as they are, harmonise well with the subjects on the wall below.

No. 161. "Panels for Decoration." WALTER CRANE.

No. III. '1880.

THE purpose of "GROSVENOR NOTES" is to be descriptive, rather than critical; to form an annual record of the Summer Exhibition which should be interesting and useful for reference.

The ILLUSTRATIONS are intended to convey an idea of the composition, rather than of the effect, of the pictures, and are not intended as works of art. The most interesting and useful are those reproduced in facsimile from sketches received from the artists; they are to be distinguished throughout the book by an asterisk (*) under the illustration.

The Editor is indebted to those artists who have assisted him with sketches, and to Sir Coutts Lindsay for the facilities afforded him for the rapid production of the book.

"The Spirit of Inquiry."

Notices to Artist.—Sketches for "Grosvenor Notes" (Summer Exhibition) should be sent to Mr. Henry Blackburn, at his residence, 103 Victoria Street, S.W., or to the "care of the Secretary of the Grosvenor Gallery," on or before the 15th of April in each year. Exhibitors are requested to give early intimation of the completion of any important work.

*** The copyright of pictures sketched in this book is reserved by their respective owners.

"Grosyenor Notes" may be obtained in the Gallery, and at the Librairie de l'Art, 33 Avenue de l'Opera, Paris.

The fourth annual exhibition of works by fiving artists contains 293 paintings, water-colours, etchings, and drawings, and 32 of sculpture, &c.

Entering the large WEST GALLERY. (the "Red Room") by the middle door, we find the chief positions on the south wall occupied by two landscapes by Cecil Lawson. On the west wall are important works by R. Spencer Stanhope, J. M. Strudwick, and J. D. Linton; Mr. Watts's "Daphhe and Psyche" being in the centre, facing the entrance. At the head of this room is a large painting by A. Legros, and under it, on the line, a head, by Sir F. Leighton, P.R.A.

No. 1. " Portrait of Mist Martineff." HERBERT WILSON.

And next, a very powerful life-size portrait (in black frame), No. 2. "Portrait of W. Holman Hunt, Esq." W. B. RICHMOND. Below the foregoing are two small pictures—

No. 4, "Helya and Gunnling;" landscape with figures, FAIR-FAX MURRAY; and No. 3, "Almond Blossoms;" two figures in red draperies, EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 5. "Portrait of Marguerite, daughter of William Beverley, Esq." MISS STARR.

No. 6. . Portrait of Dr. Chepmell." V. C. PRINSEP, A.R.A.

The space on this panel is principally devoted to the works of M. Bastien Lepage.

No. 7. "Les Foins." J. BASTIEN LEPAGE.

This large canvas represents a young, ungainly woman (worn with labour), seated in a field of new-mown hay, at rest; a man, with his hat over his eyes, lying full-length asleep behind her; a characteristic work of the painter, unflinching in its realism, but highly finished, tenderly treated, and temperate in colour; the kind of work rarely seen in England. The sketch gives the principal figure only.

West Gallery.

No. 8. "La Communiante," is a small work, to be examined closely for the painting; a little girl in white dress, veil and gloves, and wreath of white flowers. Not less remarkable are M. Bastien Lepage's portraits, in different parts of the gallery, including a small one of the famous "Malle. Sarah Bernhardt;" in profile, holding a little figure in clay; a delicate grey picture (in steel frame), the highest point of colour being the flowing brown hair of the artiste, the background and accessories the colour of old ivory. An etching of this picture is published at the office of L'Art.

No. 9. "Malle. Sarah Bernhardt." J. Bastien Lepage.

No. 10. "Monsieur Klokz." No. 11. "Madame Klotz." (See also Nos. 35, 86, and 141, by the same artist.)

No. 12. "Portrait of F. Dixon, Esq., of Sunderland," A LEGROS. A powerful study, in hot haste, with bare canvas for background.

On the right are two works by C. E. HALLE, the first a portrait (circular)—No. 13, Miss Mathilde Halle."

No. 14. "A Cup of Tca," a delicate little picture of a girl in white, seated, in simple dress of the last century (one bought for a wedding and never used), blue cups and saucers and faded red settee.

[Door.]

No. 15. "A Visit to the Peacock." W. J. HENNESSY.

Two children and a peacock, under high trees in a sunny French garden; an upright picture.

No. 16. "Spring;" Alpine scenery, in the Redlands, Holmwood, Surrey. W. BISCOMBE GARDNER.

No. 17. "Watercress Gatherers." DAVID CARR.

A poetic landscape in evening light, grey and quiet in tone; similar in treatment to, but more powerful than, the "Weed-Burners," of last year.

No. 18. "Plums." WILLIAM HUGHES. One of two upright, decorative panels of fruit in a vase. (Note the painting of fruit in this and in No. 24, on the right.)

No. 19. "Portrait of Professor Huxley, F.R.S." A. LEGRÖS.

Another sketch by the Slade Professor; painted at a sitting.

No. 20. " The August Morn." CECIL LAWSON.

In the centre, between Mr. Cecil Lawson's landscapes, are-

No. 21, "The Annunciation to the Shepherds," J. BASTIEN LEPAGE; a sombre picture, finely composed; differing in style and treatment to his other work here; three figures, one, the angel, with nimbus and belt of real gold. (A sketch for this picture will be found in L'Art, for 1878, No. 188, p. 111.)

No. 22. "The Bridge of Sighs." P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A. Landscape in grey light; the two figures in old-fashioned, rustic, costume; a lad on a white horse at the stream.

The principal part of the south wall is occupied by the two landscapes (sketched on pp. 12 and 14) Nos. 20 and 23. Of the first, No. 20, "The August Moon," the artist says:—"My aim has been to produce the effect of the autumn golden moon rising over an English landscape before the daylight has quite disappeared and the moon has asserted its full power. The principal features in the foreground are three Scotch firs, through which you look down into marsh lands where cattle browse, and beyond a wooded valley, the distant Sussex downs, which form the line of the horizon."

This picture was painted at Blackdown, in the neighbourhood of Haslemere, Surrey.

In No. 23, are portraits of Hilda and Evelyn, daughters of Mrs. Philip Flower, set in an English landscape, with foreground of grasses and wild flowers.

"In this picture," says Mr. Lawson, "I have endeavoured to introduce two portrait figures in a landscape without destroying the key of colour of the whole; and—by subordinating the tone of the figures and elaborating and accentuating the tree and the immediate foreground flowers and weeds—making the picture as much a portrait of a silver birch, meadow sweet, and dandelions, as of the children and distant landscape."

No. 23. "The Voice of the Cuckoo." CECIL LAWSON.

"Whilst faintly, from the distant copse, A lingering cuckoo, with his sudden plaint, Breaks the sweet stillness of the dreamy day."

No. 24. "Quinaes." W. HUGHES.

No. 25. "Portrait of Professor Marshall, F.R.S." A. LEGROS.

On the west wall, in the corner, is-

No. 26. "Portrait of Mr. Odell, the Actor." H. HERKOMER, A.R.A.

No. 27. "A Normandy Orchard;" an excellent sunny little landscape; cows and sheep in a field under trees. MARK FISHER. Mr. Fisher's principal works are in the East Gallery.

In the centre of the next panel is a poetically-conceived painting, by C. E. HALLE; St. George rescuing Sabeea, daughter of the King of Egypt—

No. 28. "St. George and the Dragon." C. E. HALLE.

St. George in steel armour; fierce battle, and a crimson stream upon the ground.

No. 29. "Boy at a Well, Venice." C. E. HALLE.

No. 30. "Portrait of S. B. Bancroft, Esq." CARLO RELLEGRINI.

No. 32. "Portrait of Robert Browning, Esq." A. LEGROS.

No. 33. "A Door on to the Silent Highway." E. J. POYNTER, R.A. A bit of the Grand Canal, Venile, seen through a doorway.

No. 34. "An Unprofessional Beauty." V.C. PRINSEP, A.R.A. Portrais of a lady in hat with white feather, slate-coloured dress.

This large, decorative and highly-laboured painting, which fills the greater part of the next panel—a picture which is more akin to the works of the early Florentine painters than anything to be seen in modern exhibitions—is crowded with figures, painted in pure and brilliant tints, all hurrying to "the waters of forgetfulness." The outline will suffice to indicate the principal figures in this refined and elaborate picture.

No. 31. "The Waters of Lethe." R. SPENCER STANHOPE.

No. 35. "Portrait of M. Charpentier." J. BASTIEN LEPAGE.

No. 36. "Hunt the Slipper." Mrs. ALMA-TADEMA. Small interior, with children seated at play.

Above is, No. 37, "Calves," W. B. RICHMOND. Two figures driving calves through wood and marsh, in waning light.

Next on the line are several fine portraits-

No. 38. "A Portrait;" half-length. G. F. WATTS, R.A. Little child standing, green dress, fair hair.

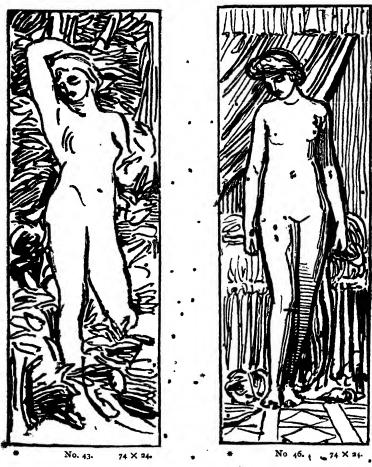

No. 39. "Portrait of W. H. Wills, Esq., M.P." E. J. GREGORY.

No. 40. "Portrait of Charles Darwin, Esq., F.R.S.;" half-length; seated, in red robe. W. B. RICHMOND.

No. 41. "A Vestal." E. J. POYNTER, R.A. Girl in light robe with white roses in her hair, holding a vessel.

No. 42. " Portrait of Rev. C. Beanlands." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

Next are Mr. Watts's two principal subjects, poetical and altogether admirable, life-size studies of the figure, painted in a low key of colour; the first, the classic figure of Daphne sheltering amongst laurel-leaves; the second, Psyche, with pathetic face, her lamp thrown down. There is nothing in the Grosvenor Gallery towhich more attention should be drawn.

No. 43. "Daphne." No. 46. "Psyche."
G. F. WATTS, R.A.

Next is an admirable portrait of the author of the "Earthly Paradise," by the same artist.

No. 44. "Portrait of William Morris, Esq." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

No. 45. "Watchman! What of the Night?" A sad face in steel armour, pale and fair. G. F. WATTS, R.A.

No. 47. "Laura;" "Ah! rendi mi quel cor che mi donasti." (head of a girl singing.) G. F. WATTS, R.A.

No. 48. "Madonna Laura." FAIRFAX MURRAY.

Next is the graceful figure, life-size, three-quarter length, No. 49, "Mrs. Louise Fopling;" J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.; in black drass embroidered with flowers; one of the most striking portraits in the Exhibition. (See also No. 54, on the right, by the same artist.)

In the centre of the next panel is-

No. 50. "Marsyas and Apollo." J. M. STRUDWICK.

"Oh, ecstasy!
Oh, happiness of him who once has heard
Apollo singing!

As he sang,
I saw the Nine, with lovely pitying eyes,
Sign, 'He has conquered !' Yet I felt no pang
Of fear, only deep joy that I had heard."

This picture illustrates the scene from the epic of Hades, when the Muses signify to Marsyas his defeat, and give judgment in favour of the god. There is much beauty and charm of colour in this picture, which is refined and decorative in treatment. There has been no attempt to individualise the Muses, excepting perhaps, in one or two cases, such as where Thalia hides her face, being unable to witness a scene so far removed from the comedy over which she presides. The painting is thoroughly imbued with the birit of the poem, and technically may be considered one of Mr. Strudwick's most successful works.

Under the foregoing are three excellent small examples of L. ALMA-TADEMA, R.A., wonderfully luminous in quality, in the painting of flesh tone, and in effect, on a small scale—

No. 51. "A Question;" sunlight on figures on a terrace with background of blue sea.

No. 52. "A Garden God." L. ALMA-TADEMA.

A small, upright picture; one female figure dancing before the altar to her god; the background a high wall with bas-reliefs, warm reflected light, and a peep of deep blue sky.

No. 53. "A Pastoral;" yoked oxen, sunburnt peasant, distant temple on a hillside; poppies in the fields.

No. 54. "Portrait of Mrs. Chird;" three-quarter length, life-size; light blue dress, wide black sash and sleeves. J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

No. 55. "Civettina," Mrs. KATE PERUGINI.

No. 56. "Portrait of Marjoric Mure." (Circular.)
Miss E. PICKERING.

In the centre of the next panel is the large picture sketched overleaf; an important work by an artist whose reputation, as a painter in oils, the Grosvenor Gallery was the first to establish. This picture, the first of a series of five, was thus announced in the Academy before its completion:

"The six scenes will represent incidents in the life of a soldier—incidents, we say advisedly, rather than the career—for they will be painted in accordance with what is pretty well known to be the creed of Mr. Linton in regard to pictorial art: that the execution must count for more than the subject, and that a painting must be picturesque and pleasant to the eye, whether or no it has, at the same time, an interest, literary or historical. There is therefore nothing remarkable in the artist having decided to begin his series with a painting which will not finally take its place as the first of the set, but rather as the fourth. Without regard to what may come before, or what may follow after, the soldier is here seen in young middle-life—say, at the age of six or eight and thirty—and on an occasion of triumph. Returning from war, in which he has been victorious, the soldier, a young general. is introduced to the Court, accompanied by a swarthy captive and by many rich spoils. The king and queen sit on their thrones on a dars to the left of the design. The middle of the picture is occupied by the figures of the general and of the captive as they stand out in the large and stately andience chamber, hung with banners and carpeted with Eastern fabrics; while the right side of the picture is filled with a group of the followers of the warriorhis captains and lieutenants. The scheme is so large, the amount of subject forced upon the painter by the incident depicted necessarily so great, that it is conceivable that the simple charm and quality of colour, which the artist has often sought for in his work in water-colour, will be here less adparent than in certain of his other productions."

No. 57. "Victorious." I. D. LINTON.

The painting is rich in quality of colour and full of variety in character and costume. The scene is supposed to be on the confines of Germany and a Turkish province; the period 16th century. The five works when completed will decorate panels of a large dining-room. It will be interesting to watch this series to its completion.

No. 58. "Portrait of A. J. R. Trendell, Esq."

Mrs. Louise Jopling.

No. 59. "South-east Corner of Waterloo Bridge from the River."

JQHN O'CONNOR.

On the end wall the first picture is

No. 60. "Portrait of Mrs. Goodenough—Countess Kinsky." .

C. E. HALLE.

No. 61. "Mater Dolorasa;" seated figure, bronze-coloured draperies; rocks and cypress trees. Miss E. PICKERING.

No. 62. "Gulf of Spezzia, from Lerici." Signor Costa.

Next is a finished study of a well-known picture-

No. 63. "Nausicaa and her Maidens playing at Ball."
E. J. POYNTER, R.A.

The principal figure on the left is in deep orange robe, the second in green. Nausicaa is in the act of striking the ball; the scene is a green sward near a rivulet by the sca. The original picture (sketched below) was exhibited at the Royal Academy last year. The running figure is draped in the finished sketch.

No. 64. "Well in the Courtyard, La Comumela, Sorrento."

WALTER CRANE.

No. 65. "Portrait of the Dowager Lady Stanley of Alderley."
W. B. RICHMOND.

No. 66. "Premi!" a side canal, Venice; gondolier turning a corner. C. E. HALLE.

No. 67.- "L'Incendie." A. LEGROS.

A large, unfinished, canvas, representing on the left an old man rescuing a child from fire: two female figures on the ground on the right. In the centre of the wall, at the head of the large gallery, under the foregoing, is

No. 69. "Rubinella." A girl with golden-red hair, in green dress, with necklace of beads. Sir F. LEIGHTON, P.R.A.

On either side are two small and excellent studies from nature-

No. 68. "Evening—Calvados." W. J. HENNESSY.

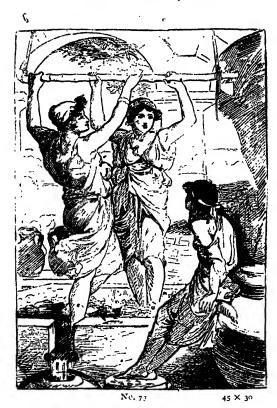

No. 70. "Last Gleanings." ALFRED PARSONS.

No. 71. "Portrait of Miss Emily Davies." Painted by Subscription for Girton College, Cambridge. R. LEHMANN.

Below on the line are two little studies of sea.—No. 72, "After a Gale," and No. 76, "Half a Gale," H. Moore. In the first the sun is breaking through clouds; the second is cold and grey.

Mr. H. Moore's principal works are in the Royal Academy.

"And in the vats of Luna,

This year the must shall foant'
Round the white feet of laughing girls
Whose sires have march'd to Rome."

'No. 73. "The Vintage;" thin white draperies; purple juice of grapes; leaves turning brown in the landscape. J. R. WEGUELIN.

No. 74. "In the Graunds of a Moorish Villa;" three figures in the olive slopes of Algeria, picking oranges. EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 75. "Chatty;" portrait of a child. Mrs. Louise Jopling.

"No. 76. "Half a Gale." HENRY MOORE.

In No. 77 (sketched on next page) a more simple scheme of colour has been attempted than in Mr. Britten's companion work, "Music," of last year; a picture which may be remembered as a brilliant combination of colours with classic draperies.

In "Dancing," an effort has been principally made to give the qualities of lemon-yellow and azure. We draw attention to this work of a young painter, as from its position it might escape examination.

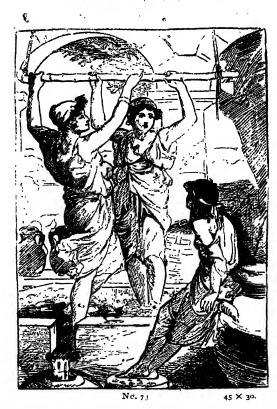

No. 77. "Dancing." W. E. BRITTEN.

The next is a small picture, one of five works by Mr. Macbeth; a scene on the coast of Brittany, of which the sketch gives an excellent idea.

No. 78. "Landing Stardines at Low Tide." R. W. MACBETH.

"And in the vats of Luna,

This year the must shall form?

Round the white feet of laughing girls

Whose sires have march'd to Rome."

'No. 73. "The Vintage;" thin white draperies; purple juice of grapes; leaves turning brown in the landscape. J. R. WEGUELIN.

No. 74. "In the Grounds of a Moorish Villa;" three figures in the olive slopes of Algeria, picking oranges. EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 75. "Chatty;" portrait of a child. Mrs. Louise Jopling.

"No. 76. "Half a Gale." HENRY MOORE.

In No. 77 (sketched on next page) a more simple scheme of colour has been attempted than in Mr. Britten's companion work, "Music," of last year; a picture which may be remembered as a brilliant combination of colours with classic draperies.

In "Dancing," an effort has been principally made to give the qualities of lemon-yellow and azure. We draw attention to this work of a young painter, as from its position it might escape examination.

No. 77. "Dancing." W. E. BRITTEN.

The next is a small picture, one of five works by Mr. Macbeth; a scene on the coast of Brittany, of which the sketch gives an excellent idea.

No. 78. "Landing Surdines at Low Tide." R. W. MACBETH.

On the other side of the door are-

No. 79. "Welcome as the Flowers in May." R. W. MACBETH; a girl in yellow dress; yellow and white, with a tinge of orange.

No. 80. "Meet of Cub-hounds." A sketch. G. H. BOUGHTON, A.R.A.

No. 81. "Portrait of Mrs. John Collier," in light dress.

JOHN COLLIER.

Underneath the foregoing is, one of two works by Thomas Armstrong (sketched on next page); landscape with figures, in glow of alian colour; an effect once seen, always remembered at tree treated with simplicity and knowledge. It is the quality in a sketch.

No. 82. "The Fisherman and the Maiden." T. ARMSTRONG.

No. 83. (Sketched overleaf.)

No. 84. "Expectation." R. W. MACBETH; girl in dark-brown dress, seated on green garden seat by a tree.

No. 85. "Waiting," a small picture; girl by a stream near a wood; dark blue and grey. ERNEST LINTZ.

No. 86. "Portrait of my Grandfather." J. BASTIEN LEPAGE. Another remarkable portrait by the young French artist.

No. 87. "The Banks of Irthing, Cumberland." G. Howerd.

No. 88. "Portrait of a Lady." R. DE EGUSQUIZA.

No. 89. "Portrait of Cyril B. Holman Hunt." W. HOLMAN HUNT. A boy (front face) with fishing-rod.

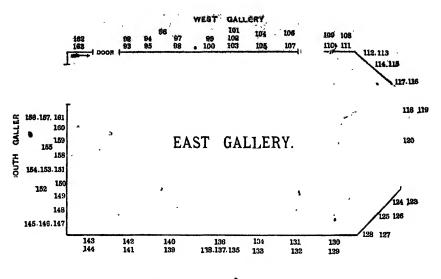

No. 90. "Terracina" R. LEHMANN.

No. 91. "Springtime-Algiers." EDGAR BARCLAY.

No. 83. "Un Garde de Chasse, avec deux Chiens courants.
OTTO WEBER. •

[End of West Gallery.]

No. 92. "A Spring Fantasy." W. J. HENNESSY. (See next page.)

No. 92 "A Spring Fantasy." W. J. HENNESSY.

The lady in a dress of pearly, peach-coloured silk, standing on the terrace of an old-fashioned garden in France. A dreamy, fanciful picture, full of light, with delicate tints and graceful lines; in the garden, a constellation of buds, blossoms and peacocks' plumes.

In the centre of this wall is an elaborately painted Algerine landscape with wild flowers, &c.; a minute study of North African vegetation.

No. 100. "The Grass of the Field." J. W. NORTH.

No. 93. "Capri." R. LEHMANN.

No. 94. "Algerine Afternoon." J. W. NORTH.

No. 96. "Portrait of E. Burne-Jones, Esq." A. LEGROS.

No. 97. "Gld Cottage, Ashford, Kent." Miss R. M. WATSON.

No. 98, "May;" pink and white hawfhorn. W. T. MUCKLEY. (See also No. 103, on the right hand.)

No. 99. "Portrait of the Earl of Denbigh," COUNT ANDRE MNISZECH.

On this wall are two pictures by Albert Moore, which should be examined together.

No. 95. "Fasmine Sprigs," a figure asleep; pink and pale draperies, sprigs of jasmine in a pot; silver-grey imbroidered background. No. 105. "Rose Leaves;" pink and white drapery; yellow flowers and embroideries. A. MOORE. These pictures are delightful for harmony of colour, delicacy and grace of line.

No. 101. "Ethel, daughter of W. H. Peake, Esq."
S. MELTON FISHER.

No. 102. "Home, sweet Home;" a village street. G. E. COOK.

No. 103. "Fruit and Flowers." W. T. MUCKLEY.

No. 164. "A Quiet Corner:" rabbits on the borders of a wood; birch trees and ferns. Mrs. FLORENCE SHERRARD-KENNEDY.

No. 106. "Female Figure in Green Drapery, Spinning."
T. Armstroff. ...

A scheme of green and yellow; poetical landscape, lemon-trees, white flowering shrubs and leafless tree.

No. 107. "Hubert, Christopher, and Oliver Howard;" an original little portrait picture; three "horsey" boys and a brown pony. E. R. HUGHES.

[Door.]

In curious contrast to Mr. Armstrong's picture, on the other side of the door-is—

- "She sitteth naked, since they drove her out From Babel of the Creeds to wastes of Doubt; There hath she wander'd long in dens and caves, Through Custom's winter, and through Reason's drought.
- "They would have cloak'd her as a shameful thing;—
  Force brought her chains, and Fraud a marriage ring;—
  But Truth, affrighted, fled the market-place,
  Where lies were coin'd in gold, and Craft was king."

No. 120. "The Golden Stairs." E. Burne-Jones; a large, upright, composition of eighteen minstrels clad in greyish white, descending barefooted a flight of pale, golden stairs. They enter on the left hand from a loggia of white marble, passing down the staircase which forms a graceful curve from left to right in the picture.

This is one of Mr. Burne-Jones' most characteristic and thoughtful pictures; a sad, Mantagnesque, and beautiful company of maidens of which we regret we have received no sketch.

No. 130. "The Last of Autumn." MARK FISHER.

Cattle and geese, horse and man; perhaps the quietest and best of all this artist's work this year.

Next is the picture (sketched overleaf).

No. 131. "A Flood in the Fens." R. W. MACBETH.

A scene in the lowlands of one of the Eastern counties of England during the floods. In the foreground the people have taken refuge on raised banks formed to keep out the waters. This is Mr. Macbeth's most serious work of the year, one of the features of the East Gallery. The prevailing colour of the landscape is subdued, with slowly-lifting clouds and a gloomy sky; the fire lighted in the foreground and the bits of colour in costume relieve the greyness of the composition. The refined studies of character, in this picture, especially of the women, will be noticed; also its harmonious and powerful effect.

No. 136. "The Song of Miriam." W. B. RICHMOND.

"Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously,"

The procession of Israelites—with timbrels, harps, lutes and instrudents of bress, headed by Miriam in an left, the corpse of Joseph is ecstasy of triumph—age seen passing over the hillside e-erlooking the Red Saa. On the carried high on men's shoulders, on a litter; behind are the baggage-bea ers; all the to left across the picture; some dancing and keeping time to measured music. Spectator with hands uplifted; Miriam is in a thin robe of white with a pink tinge.

The "Song of Miriam," which is perhaps the most elaborate and scholarly work of the painter, is in every separate figure is a careful study, and the whole leaves an impression of great solemnity and of beauty on

This picture (as stated in the Official Cata ogue) is unfinished, but, owing to its destination, could not be from the eye. The outline gives in indication of the principal lines of composition only.

No. 175. "Chapter of the Order of the Star of India, held at Eakutta, January 1st, $876; H.R.H. the Prince of Wales investing the Maharaja of Jodhpoor." SYDNEY P. HALL.

This small and very carefully-painted picture (in which there are all the elements for a large historical work) depicts the ceremony which is described in detail by Dr. Russell in his "Diary of the Prince of Wales' Tour in India." Mr. Hall accompanied the Prince as artist in the Suite.

Lord Northbrook-for whom the picture is painted-was Viceroy and, ex officio, Grand Master of the Order. The scene is laid in a vast tent. The Knights of the Grand Cross of the Star of India sit arranged in line at the end of which, on a dars, under a canopy, are seated the Grand Master and the Prince. , Jodhpoor, a Rajpoot prince, wears skirts of pink muslin, gathered into innumerable folds. Over the head of each Knight a banner is held by a distinguished squire; each wears a sky-blue robe, the heavy folds of which are borne by pages. The Prince of Wales' pages are clad in the dress of the time of Charles I.

The painting is rich in colour and full of variety in costume; on a larger canvas the subject would form an interesting record of an important event in the history of the Prince of Wales' visit to India.

In the centre of the wall is—

No. 240. "The Battle of the Elves and Frogs." R. DOYLE.

This elaborate drawing, crowded with little figures and full of humour and satire, will be best described in the artist's own words:—

"This event, it is supposed, took place in pre-historic times, or it might have been added to the fifteen decisive battles of the world—making sixteen.

"The cause of the war is wrapped in obscurity, and the mystery is not now likely to be cleared up.

"At present the fortune of war varies in different parts of the field.

"The king of the elves seems to have just delivered the word of command, "Up Guards, and at them!' and a desperate charge all along the line is the result; the troops advanting in three divisions, the third of which, to the extreme left, is composed of the reserves, who are taking a hasty drill at the last moment. Some are very young children at arms, and even in arms, while warlike mothers urge them on to action.

"A portion of the light troops of the frog army, under stress of a heavy fire of stones, seek shelter, by a temporary movement, under water.

"On the right, in the middle distance, may be seen the frog king surrounded by his family, looking on with anxiety depicted on his countenance.

"On the other hand, in the foreground to the right, many frogs of great personal streagth are getting the best of it.

a frog of distinction, lies on his back while his limbs are put in chains.

"Near this group a wounded frog is bandaged by an elf-surgeon, showing that among these little people, and at that distant time, the civilities of warfare were not unknown.

"Just in front of the elf-king, who sits on 'a coign of vantage,' surveying the scene, there is going on a fierce 'battle of the standard,' the result of which is still in doubt.

"An incident in the thick of the fight, in the centre, may be of interest to the student, as showing that the warlike manceuvre known in modern times as getting an adversary's head 'in chancery,' was familiar to the primitive frog.

"Personal valour, and the weapons provided by nature, may do much, but cannot in the long run save the frog-army from defeat. The superior civilization of the elves must tell in the end."

No. IV. 1881.

THE purpose of "GROSVENOR NOTES" is to be descriptive, rather than critical; to form a record of the Summer Exhibitions at the Grosvenor Gallery, which should be interesting and useful for reference.

The ILLUSTRATIONS are intended to convey an idea of the composition, rather than of the effect, of the pictures, and are not intended as works of art. The most interesting and useful are those reproduced in facsimile from sketches received from the artists; they are to be distinguished throughout the book by an asterisk (*) under the illustration.

The Editor is indebted to those artists who have assisted him with sketches, and to Sir Coutts Lindsay for the facilities afforded for the rapid production of the book.

No 422. Portrait Terra-cotta. H. S. Montalba.

* (Fourth Room.)

NOTICE TO ARTISTS.—Sketches for "GROSVENOR NOTES" (Summer Exhibition) should be sent to Mr. Henry Blackburn, at his residence, 103 Victoria Street, S.W., or to the "care of the Secretary of the Grosvenor Gallery," on, or before, the 15th of April in each year. Exhibitors are requested to give early intimation of the completion of any important work.

*.* The copyright of pictures sketched in this book is reserved by their respective owners.

The fifth annual exhibition of works by living artists contains 325 paintings, water colours, and works of sculpture.

The principal positions in the large West Gallery are occupied by Sir COUTTS LINDSAY (22 on plan above) and Prof. RICH-MOND (75). On the west wall, facing the entrance, are works by J. E. Millais, R.A., G. F. Watts, R.A., L. Alma-Tadema, R.A., E. J. Poynter, R.A., Holgan Hunt, Albert Moore, &c.

- Commencing at the point marked on plan the first picture in order is—
  - 1. "It always rains on Sunday;" an old woman with blue hood:

    1. H. HEYERMANS.
- 2. "Portrait of William Lindsay, Esq." Sir COUTTS LINDSAY.
  - 3. "A Summer Eve;" mountain landscape by the sea.
    THEODORE HINES.
- 4. "A Daughter of Eve;" a small picture of colour; a girl lying on the top of an old wall—with ancient frieze and Roman brick arch—reaching down, with one arm, to gather fruit. J. COLLIER.

Above is one of Mark Fisher's large, low toned landscapes, painted near Honfleur; old apple-trees, black, brown and white cattle. (Sketched over leaf.)

5. "Spring," in a Normandy orchard. MARK FISHER.

6. "The Curlew's Pool." G. HOWARD.

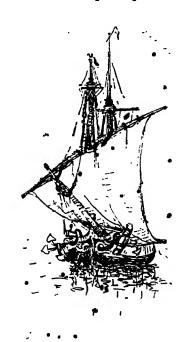

7. "The lion hath roared, who will not fear?" W. TAYLOR.
(Son of the late Tom Taylor.)

- 8. "On the Banks of the Seine," H. R. BLOOMER.
  - 9. "Apple Blossom." STUART LLOYD.
- 10. "A Lover's Meeting;" man and horse, girl and dog under high trees. HEYWOOD. HARDY.

Next are two portraits by JOHN COLLIER—

11. "Mrs. Alma-Tadema." 12. "Walter Herries Pollock, E.g."

[Door.]

No. 13. 37 × 24

- 18. "A Dalmatian Boat;" a heavy yellow sail looming out of the mist of the Lagunes. Miss CLARA MONTALBA.
- 14. "A Sleeping Beauty;" a leopard. HEYWOOD HARDY.
- 15. "Pharamond and Azalais;" the king and queen in Morris's drama of 'Love is Enough; 'a small picture with dark-green background and rich red draperies. FAIRFAX MURRAY.

17. "The Grey Sisters." Miss E. PICKERING.

1st Sister. "I-call myself Hunger."
2nd Sister. "I call myself Debt."
3rd Sister. "I call myself Care."
4th Sister. "I call myself Necessity."
Three together. "The gate is closed a Three together. "The gate is closed, we cannot pass;

Here dwells a rich man, we dare not enter."

FAUST (from inside).

"Four saw I come, but those that went were three."

Care. "So feel it now; my curse thou'lt find
When forth from thee I've swiftly passed.
Throughout their whole existence men are blind;
So, Faust, be thou like them at last."

BAYARD TAYLOR'S Translation of Goethe's Faust, Part II.

The figure at the gate represents Hunger, or Want, while the two other departing figures are Debt and Necessity; Debt being represented with her face hid from view. Care is the figure who has passed through the barred gate, and is coming forward to assert her power over Faust.

In this picture, which is painted in rich low tones or red, green, and purple, with dark foliage, the decorative feeling is predominant, as in the work of the early Italian masters. Another subject picture by this young artist, "The Angel of Death" (99), will be found near the door of the East Gallery.

West Gallery.

18. "The Purple Vine." W. HUGHES.

(See also No. 25 on the same wall. Two panels; the first, blue grapes and a bullfinch; the second, white grapes and a goldfinch.)

Underneath is a remarkable portrait of a lady in green velvet—

19. "Miss Holland." W. B. RICHMOND.

21. "Forget-me-nots—Orchardleigh." ALFRED PARSONS.

Early summer; a green spot in Somersetshire; the composition and general effect of the picture are well indicated in the sketch.

Above are two portraits by W. G. WILLS, the dramatist-

- 20. "Miss Hamilton Gordon."
- 23. "Miss Gertrude Cowie."

No. 22. "The Boat of Charon." Sir Coutts Lindsay.

So, looking further onward, I beheld People who paused on a great river's brink, At which I spake: "Master, concede to me The knowledge who those be, and why they are So eager to pass o'er, as I discern By the dim help of this discoloured light."

When, lo, a greybeard, onward in a bark, Furrowed and blanched with eld, came shouting loud:

"Woe unto ye, spirits of men depraved, No more to hope for sight of gentle heaven! I come to bear ye to far other shores, Into eternal darkness, frost, and heat."

But, when the faint and naked ghosts had heard

His harsh words' sound, their colour waned • away,

And their teeth chattered; then blasphemed they God,

The human race, their parents, and the seed
That gendered them, their day and hour.

of birth,
Till all together closing in one band,
With miserable sobbing, they set foot
Upon that strand trod by all godless m-n.
Charon, demoniac, with his eyes aglow,
Beckons each one, or, with his swift oar smites

Those lingering; and—like autumnal leaves That flutter downward from the parent bough,

Now one, now two, until the branch is bare

And all its summer honour fall'n to earth—

So the bad seed of Adam, from the ban's One after one embark; poor birds that come Lured by the fowler's call.

Then spake my courteous master: "Know, my son,

That those who die unter the wrath of God.

From the four corners of the earth unite
Here, in such wise heav'n's justice spurring

That they are eager for the transis o'er; Fear to great yearning turned."

This said, the swarthy soil reverberate shook.

So that the memory of that alone Bathes me in sweat e'en now—the sad earth belched

Lightning and wind in a vermilion flame,

That, with the horror, all my senses failed, And I sank headlong as by sleep struck down.

Dante's Inferno, canto iii. (translated by the artist).

"Done" with his guide, Virgil, is standing to the left of the picture, in the centre of which Charon is pushing off his boat. The boat is loaded with souls who have come to their fate through the sins of love. A hag sits in the prow, and across her knees hes a woman whom she has tempted to destruction, and who curses her, with uplifted arms. Two lovers cling together, a woman raises aloft the dagger with which she has killed the little child at her knee; all the souls are crowding into the boat with despairing haste. Among the wretched throng, crowding the boat or standing on the grim shore, may be recognised persons whose names and history, with the sins for which they are condemned and the horrible torments they are supposed to endure, are described in the 'Divine Comedy.'"

An etching of this picture will, shortly he published at the Librairie de l'Art.

24. "Rose Sindish." G. H. BOUGHTON, A.R.A.

25. "The Golden Vine." W. HUGHES.

26. "The Hon. Mrs. Lyulph Stanley;" red dress. W. B. RICHMOND.

27. "Wittenham Clumps." KEELEY HALSWELLE.

A well-known spot in Berkshire; corn sheaves, rolling clouds, heavy near the horizon.

28. "Portrait of Mrs. G. Bell Irving." EDGAR BARCLAY.

29. "A Washing Tank at Grimaldi, near Mentone." T. ARMSTRONG.

Two women kneeling by a tank, washing, listening to an old woman who stands in the foreground holding a bundle of olive sticks for fuel in one hand, and a basket with lemons. In this small picture of colour, the costumes are characteristic of the Italian part of the Riviera; stuff dresses, varying from plum colour through red to orange.

30. "In Honour of the Race;" child in blue. A. MORGAN.

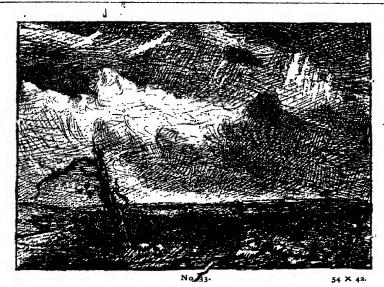

31. "A Rose among Thorns;" blackberrying. J. E. CHRISTIE.

82. "Still-life." R. BARRETT BROWNING.

Sunflowers, melons, peaches, plums, &c., and a bright copper pan.

34. "A View in Surrey." G. LUCAS.

On the next page is one of Mr. Lawson's poetical landscapes—33, "In the Valley of Desolation," CECIL LAWSON. The breaking up of the storm; a scene painted in Yorkshire. Here, as in the works of Gericault and Ruysdael, the interest is in the tumultuous movement of clouds, through which light is beginning to appear. This picture is the property of Louis Huth, Esq.

33. "In the Valley of Daolation." CECIL LAWSON.

85. "Alice, daughter of Frederick Pollock, Esq." Mrs. John Collier.

37. "Sisters." Mrs. AJ MA-TADEMA.

36. "Three Ages of a Life;" eight figures, coming down steps to a ferry. LOUISA, MARCHIONESS OF WATERFORD.

38. "Yuppies;" in glass vase. W. J. MUCKLEY.

Next is one of Mr. Millais' principal pictures of the year, a child standing near a wood, in light cotton-print frock, with basket of violets; primroses on bank. The rough sketch gives the pose and energl aspect of the figure, but not the beauty of face, which is perhaps better indicated on our title-page.*

39. "Swectest eyes were ever seen." J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

40. "Portraits." R. W. MACBETH.

41. "Ave Casar—Io Saturnalia?" L. ALMA-TADEMA, R.A.

(See next page.)

42. "A Portrait;" a small picture, lady standing in red dress; a gentleman seated at a piano. L. ALMA-TADEMA, R.A.

43. "Narcissi and Roses." W. J. MUCKLEY.

Next is a nearly life-size portrait of Professor, Owen in life robes-

44. "Professor Owen, C.B., F.R.S." . W. HOLMAN HUNT.

45. "Treasures." Mrs. WYLLIE. Mother and child gathering shells by the sea.

46. "Forget-me-nots." ALBERT MOORE.

A small picture; single figure of a girl in classic drapery; pale-blue and amber. (Mr. Moore's larger work is in the East Gy. 137.)

saluting (some half-satirically) the newly made Emperor. Note the painting of marble and rich draperies, the mosaic floor, and even the bronze letters on the busts of the late Emperors, which require a magnifying glass to artist, representing Claudius hiding behind a curtain, with a heap of slain on the ground, and Prætorian guards An extraordinarily powerful little painting, a repetition, in some sort, of a well-known picture by the same decipher. A photograph, larger than the picture, is published by the Berlin Photographic Company

This classic and original composition (one of a series painted for Wyfold Court, the seat of the late Edward Hermon, Esq., M.P.) represents Paris, son of Priam, king of Troy, carrying off Helen from Sparta. A galley with armed men is lying off the shore, to which Helen is conveyed in a rude country cart. The two white horses pringe into the sea, and the conveyance, driven by a peasant, sinks deep in the disturbed water; Venus (Aphrodite) the intriguing goddess, aiding the escape of Helen, floats before them, calming the waters with a touch and scattering flowers in the air.

On the left is the beautiful Helen (heroine of many elopements) lying upon the rough conveyance, in the costume in which she had been hunting, pale yellow and violet, her fair hair streaming in the wind. Near her, seated triumphantly on the car, is Paris, his feet almost reaching to the water; and on the right, the fair figure of Venus, in robes of lose colour.

The lines of composition are sufficiently indicated in the sketcn; the scheme of colour is briliant and decorative; full of light and movement, and singularly free from conventionality.

49. "Professor Ruskin." H. HERKOMER, A.R.A.

Next is a portrait of great interest, just completed-

- 50. "H.R.H. Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne;" halfiength; the face nearly in profile. W. B. RICHMOND.
- 51. "The late Right Hon. Stratford Canning, Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe, K.G." G. F. WATTS, R.A.
  - 52. "Reverie." G. F. WATTS, R.A.
  - 53. "Judith—a Study." E. J. POYNTER, R.A.

54. "Misgivingsi" WALTER MACLAREN.

One of three pictures by this artist; we have sketched two of them (the artist being in Italy) to draw attention to the quality of this painter's work.

Next is a group of pictures by G. F. Watts, R.A., whose works have always been a feature in the Grosvenor Gallery.

55. "The Genius of Greek Postry." G. F.

No. 57. "Arcadia." G. F. WAITS, R.A.

56. "Endymion." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

Under the "Arcadia" hangs this small and beautiful work (too subtle to sketch without aid from the artist), representing the goddess Diana stooping over the sleeping Endymion; her form, as has been suggested, "taking the outline of the crescent moon."

58. "The Wife of Pygmalion." G. F. WATTS, R.A.

Next are two portrait pictures by W. B. RICHMOND-

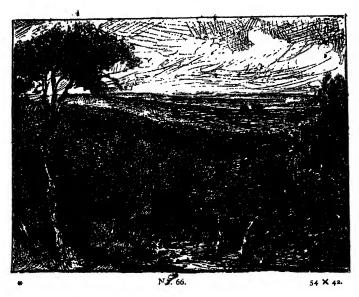

59. "Miss Edith Kennedy;" child in white dress.

60. "A Sketch;" lady in black hat and dark-green cloak.

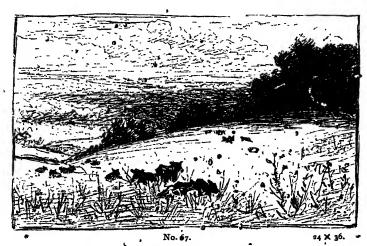

- 61. "Fe nate traped Figure at a Fountain." T. ARMSTRONG. Soft yellow drapery, background of orange-trees and rose-bushes; evening light.

120. "The Laidley Wo m of Spindleton Heugh;" a legend of Bamboro' Castle. Walter Crane.

120. "The Lailley Worm of Spindleton Heugh;" a legend of Bamboro' Castle. WALTER CRANEA

"Word went east, and word went west,
And word is gone over the sea, •
That a Laidley worm in Spindleton Heugh,
Would ruin the North Countrie.

"He sheathed his sword, and bent his bow,
And gave her kisses three;
She stept into a hole a worm,
And stepped out a ladye."
Old Northumbrian Ballad.

The Laidley Worm of Spindleton Heugh is a Northumbrian ballad, written, it is said, by Duncan Frazier, the bard of the Cheviots. The story in brief is as follows:-The Lady Margaretis transformed into the Laidley Worm by the malice of a wicked step-mother and the arts of certain witch wives. The Worm devastates the country, and word of its ravages goes over the sea, whence a knight (the Childy Wynd) voyages, and landing at Budle Sands, reaches Spindleton and goes to meet the worm. The mode of attack is described in the verse quoted. In the end the lady regains her natural shape, and they ride off together to Bamboro' Castle, to oust the step-mother, who is finally transformed herself into a toad. This episode (of the riding away) is shown in the picture, as also another, the witch wives trying by spells to destroy the good knight's ship, which being made of the charmed rowan (mountain ash) wood, of course resisted their efforts. Bamboro' Castle is seen away on the right of the picture, and in front are the crags of Spindleton, while to the left is the Budle River, with the knight's ship. (See MURRAY'S Hdbk. to Durham and Northd.

This picture is in a dark key of colour, and its gloomy lurid light, contrasting with the fairer flesh tones, are intended to reflect the wild, romantic character of the subject, not unmixed with a certain quaintness. (See also "Europa," No. 135, on opposite wall.)

121. "G. F. White, Esq." CARLO PELEGRINI.

122. "Mary and Cecilia Howard," children and dog. S. R. HUGHES.

123. " Clement Godson, Esq., M.D." A. STUART-WORTLEY.

124. "A Rocky Shore;" fishing boats going out on a good sailing breeze. C. NAPIER HEMY.

125. "Edith Maude, daughter of Charles J. Galloway, Esq." E. J. GREGORY.

126. "Thomas Blanford, Esq." CARLO PELEGRINI.

127. "Sin Arthur Kennedy, Governor of Queenstand."
R. LEHMANN.

128. "The Melancholy Days;" a sad landscape; autumn tints, bare trees, cows and pigs. MARK FISHER.

130. "Fohnnie." J. HANSON WALKER.

131. "After the Bath," W. FISHER; girl reposing; a little bit of colour, which hangs in pleasant contrast to the gold of the "Europa."

132. "The Mill in the Gloaming." C. NAPIER HEMY.

An old mill; barge moored; five figures, two carrying a milk-pail; evening light.

"Art thou pale for weariness,
Of climbing Heaven and gazing on the earth?"

129. "Luna;" a pale-blue picture. Mrs. A. L. MERRITT.

134. "Fair Katherine." A. STUART-WORTLEY.

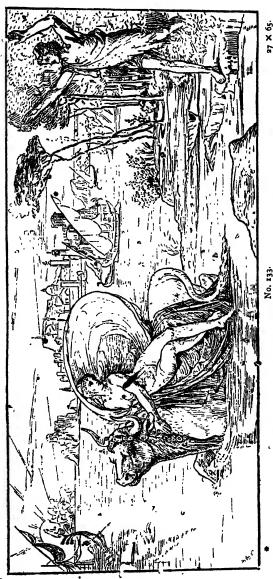

135. "Gay, daughter of Sir A. B. Paget, K.C.B." Mrs. A. MURCH.

136. "Beyond the Ponte Molle, Rome." R. CORBETT.

137. "Blossoms." ALBERT MOORE. A single figure in pink drapery with black headdress; a pale-red picture, lighted with white blossoms.

138. "Late Autumn." J. W. Buxton Knight.

 $\Lambda$  wooded landscape, with village seen through autumn trees.

183. "Europa." WALTER CRANE.

The object has been, technically, to produce a fair luminous picture, worked chiefly in tones and variants of opal and - towers, rising behind, may suggest the states and powers of Europa, and the vessels may symbolize Phonician commerce gold. The "mild bull" bearing away Eumpa from her Phoenician home, has entered the water at the edge of a grove, through which Cadmus in pursuit has followed, and he now stands in amazement. Phoebus is seen in his car in the disc of The clustered domes, temples and the setting sun, turning his horses westward, and indicating the destiny of Europa. and enterprise, whilst the almond blooms with promise of things to be. Next is 139, a delightful portrait by W. B. RICHMOND; a lady with dark hair and olive-green dress.

140. "Sweet Thoughts of Spring;" daffodils, primroses, and wall-flower. LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarres).

141. "Gangway, East Runton, Norfolk." WALTER CRANE.

142. "A Study of Harmonies;" pink and white cyclamens:

LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarres).

143. "Budley Water." WALTER CRANE.

144. "A Jocund Company;" tulips. LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarres). Next is the first of two companion pictures (see No. 153).

145. "A Dance of Shepherdesses." C. E. HALLÉ.

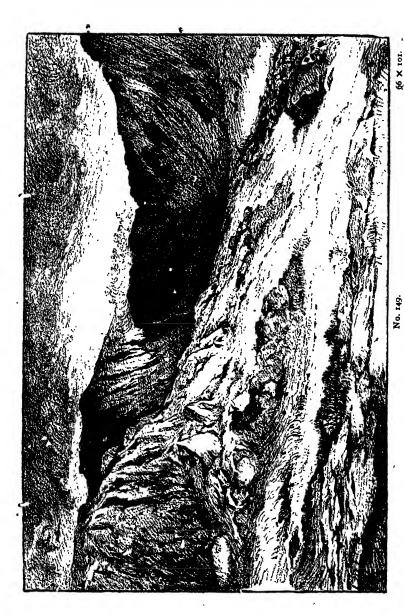

A classic dance on a green sward"; white robes and spring flowers, with distant sea; a scheme of opalescent colours, strengthened by two notes of pure colour—orange and blue.

146., "The Rt. Rev. Lord Bishop of Salisbury." W. B. RICHMOND.

147. "The Little Fisherman." WALTER MACLAREN.

148. "The Refectory, Rivaulx Abbey, Yorkshire." WALTER CRANE.

In the centre of this wall is Mr. Herkomer's large landscape, an evening effect with thunder-clouds (sketched on next page).

152. "First Approach to the Venetian Lagoon." G. COSTA.

153. "A Wild Boar Hunt." C. E. HALLE.

A companion picture to No. 145, in strong contrasted tones of red, blue and brown. Here all is passion and colour; three young men wearing the chlamys are seen hunting; one has fallen wounded, another is poising a spear to attack. In this picture the execution is bolder than in No. 145; in the one is the grace of girlhood, in the other the vigour of manhood.

155. "Wharncliffe Chase." E. J. POYNTER, R.A.

156. "Miss Winifred Butwer." Miss E. PICKERING.

157. "Within and Wishout." Miss Amy Hughes.

No. V. 1882.

THE purpose of "GROSVENOR NOTES" is to be descriptive, rather than critical; to form a record of the Summer Exhibitions at the Grosvenor Gallery, which shall be interesting and useful for reference.

The ILLUSTRATIONS are intended as memoranda only, of the composition of the pictures, and are not intended as works of art. The most interesting and useful are those reproduced in facsimile from sketches received from the artists; they are to be distinguished throughout the book by an asterisk (*) under the illustration.

The Editor is indebted to those artists who have assisted him with sketches, and to Sir Coutts Lindsay, for the facilities afforded for the rapid production of the book.

Notice to Artists.—! ketches for "Grosvenor Notes" (Summer Exhibition) should be sent to Mr. Henry Blackburn, at his residence, 103 Victoria Street, S.W., or to the "care of the Secretary of the Grosvenor Gallery," on, or before, the 15th, of April in each year. Exhibitors are requested to give early intimation of the completion of any important work.

No. 5. "Loading Corn-Roundstone, West of Ireland." W. H. BARTLETT.

The sixth summer exhibition, of works by living artists, contains 389 paintings, water-colours, and works of sculpture.

The principal positions in the large West Gallery (the "Red Room") are occupied as marked on the plan above.

Commencing at the point marked with an arrow, we find the first panel principally occupied by portraits.

No. 1. "Dorothy, Daughter of Viscount Hood."
J. HANSON WALKER.

No. 2. "Nocturne in Blue and Silver." J. M. WHISTLER. One of two studies of colour on still water (see No. 106).

No. 3. "Mrs. Holford;" half-length, in dark dress. Sir Coutts Lindsay.

No. 4. "The Rev. E. W. Egerton, D.D." H. HERKOMER, A,R.A.

The next two pictures are by young artists, the first—No. 5, "Loading Corn, Roundstone, West of Ireland, W. H. BARTLETT (sketched on last page), is by the painter of the "Return from the Seal Hunt," in the Royal Academy last year; the second is—

No. 6. "Labour." R. BARRETT BROWNING.

The robust, determined figure of a field girl, life-size, with fair hair, bare head and feet, coming down hill towards the spectator; a reflection (at a distance) of M. Bastien Lepage, whose "Les Foins," hanging in the same position in this gallery two years ago, will be remembered.

The central portrait is a half-length, seated figure—

No. 7. "J. Jones Jenkins, Esq, M.P." F. Holl, A.R.A.

No. 8. "The Right Hon. A. J. B. Beresford-Hope." S. HODGES.

No. 9. "On the Road to Monaco from Mentone," January, 1882. CECIL LAWSON. One of three landscapes by Mr. Lawson (whose principal work, No. 30, is on the next wall); a bit of mountain road, with pine trees and deep blue sky.

· Next are two heads, the first an admirable likeness—

No. 11. "Wilkie Collins, Esq." R. LEHMANN. "

No. 12. "Faire Rosammde." MRS. LOUISE JOPLING. Green velver, square-cut, embroidered dress.

[Door.]

No. 13. " Vonetian Sirens." R. W. CURTIS.

No. 14. "To Crown the Queen. J. E. CHRISTIE.

No. 15. "The Path unxer the Olives, Bordighera;" small landscape, two figures. G. HOWARD.

No. 18. "A Portrait Study;" boy's head and shoulders. E. LINTZ.

No. 22. "Spring Time." MARK FISHER.

No. 19. "Circe;" seated, in orange-coloured robe, on terrace; three pigs, distant mountains and sea. WALTER DUNCAN.

(Posthumous portrait.)

• . No. 21. "Un Bergeron." WILLIAM PADGETT.

A single figure leaning against a tree; suggestive of a good picture, with something of the sadness of French paysannage.

No. 23. "The Siren;" small nude figure, with mirror.
MISS DOROTHY TENNANT.

No. 26. "Odysseus." H. M. PAGET.

Red sunset light on boat and figure; dark blue mountains, and water "where the porpoise leaps."

In this corner are two pictures by skillul painters, the first a quiet English landscape in grey suffused light, No. 22 (sketched opposite), the second, No. 24, is a contrast—full of interest in the drawing of sea and in the power of indicating wind and distance—

No. 24. "Dirty Weather in the Channel." H. MOORE.

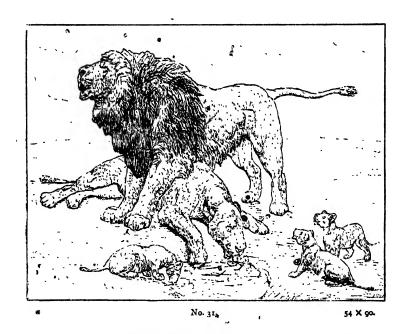

No. 25. "Anglers." W. E. F. BRITTEN. Small; two children on a raft, green foliage and reflections.

No. 27. "John Samuel, Esq." C. E. HALLÉ.

No. 28. "Playmates;" a child seated on the ground with a dog, white tablecloth background. R. W. MACBETH. A small work, fresh and delightful in sentiment and colour.

Above is a portrait—No. 29, "René, son of F. Harrison, Esq." MRS. J. COLLIER.

A boy in black, standing on fur rug, with colley dog.

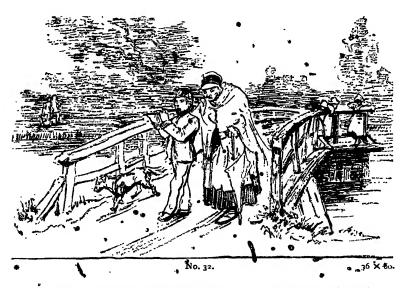

No. 31. "A Dirge in the Desert." J. T. NETTLESHIP.

A lion roaring over his lioness, who is dying of an arrow wound in the throat. The landscape and sky are from studies in India; the ground, but nt after the hot season, has just been relieved by rain. The cubs are about two months old, older than those in ROSA BONHEUR'S picture of "The Lion at Home."

No. 30. "The Storm-Cloud—West Lynn, N. Devon." CECIL LAWSON.

Dramatic landscape; a gloomy mountain side, dark valley; and weather-beaten oak; the chief interest is in the movement of clouds and the storm gloom relieved by a glimpse of blue sky.

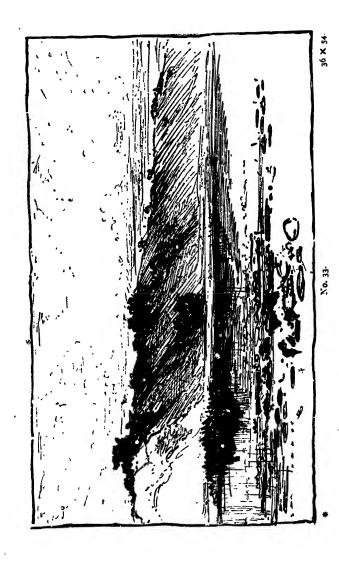

Next is one of Mr. Morris' sentimental landscapes, the light is waning over the river—"the river of life"; the old woman going home, the bridge nearly passed, the end near.

No. 32. "Passing the Bridge." P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A.

Old woman in white cloak, boy in scarlet regimental tunic; three rustic figures on bridge, two walking together in the distance; evening light.

Next is a landscape, which is without question the best of Mr. HALSWELLE'S exhibited works this year; a spot, well known on the Thames, above Maidenhead,; grey fleecy clouds and quiet harmony of colour peculiar to England in summer. The sketch (overleaf) forms a good memorandum of this river picture, with its floating water lilies.

No. 33. "Shooter's Hill, Pangbourne." Keeley Halswelle.

No. 34. "Una;" G. P. JACOMB HOOD; in search of the Red Cross Knight, who has been separated from her by the wiles of Archimago disguised as a hermit.—See Spenser's Faery Queen.

Pale violet dress, dark wood, ground strewn with autumn leaves.

No. 34. "Una." G. P. JACOMB HOOD.

No. 35. "The Shulamite." R. SPENCEP, STANHOPE.

"I charge you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and by the hinds of the field, that ye stir not up, nor awake my love, till he please."—Song of Solomon, ii. 7.

A very bright-coloured decorative picture of ten women in classic robes of orange, green, blue, red, and yellow, grouped near the entrance of a house; cypress and orange trees; blue hills and mountains.

No. 37. " James Payn, Esq." R. LEHMANN.
Portrait of the well-known novelist.

No. 38. "Labour." J. B. CLARK.

No 36. WALTER CRANE.

"Would but some winged angel, ere too late,
Arrest the yet unfolded roll of Fate,
And make the stern recorder otherwise
Enreguater, or quite obliterate!" **
Rubdiydt of Oma * Khayyam.

A golden throne, with marble steps; wings or pearl; distant sea. No. 39. "A Mother and Daughter;" portraits of a well-known autiful lady and her daughter. VAL. PRINSEP, A.R.A.

West Gallery.

No. 40. "Barbara;" a piquante figure in black dress and white cap. J. FORBES ROBERTSON.

No. 41. "The Signal;" small upright landscape. E. J. GREGORY.

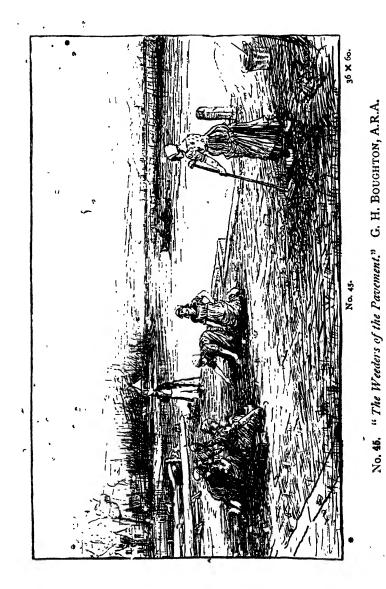

No. 42. " Christmas Roses." W. J. MUCKLEY.

Next is one of several Algerian pictures here, the studies for which were made when camping with the tribe of the Beni-Manguellath in the spring of 1880; a fine country and climate for artists, as Mr. Barclay's book, Mountain Life in Algeria (lately published), testifies.

No. 43. " Early Steps." EDGAR BARCLAY.

Mr. Boughton's picture (sketched on next page) represents one of the "dead cities" of the Zuyder Zee, once a thriving port, now grassgrown, and almost deserted; commerce has departed to the more favoured port we can see in the distance across the bay, owing to the filling up of the harbour with sand. The old harbour-master has little more to do than overlook the women weeding the pavement. This is perhaps the most important of Mr. Boughton's Dutch subjects this year—certainly the most suggestive and poetical—contrast of the vigour of youth with age and decay.

No. 44. "Children of Sir Fowell and Lady V. Buxton." E. CLIFFORD.

No. 47. "Flora." R. W. MAGBETH.

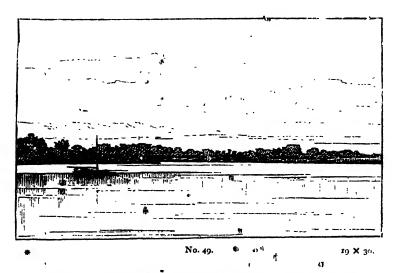

Flora, with a bunch of conflowers, in pink, or light salmon-colour dress, with her black and white dogs. A delightful picture, full of air, grace, and movement, well indicated in the sketch.

No. 46. "Study in a Boat Building, Yard on the French Coast."

Girl in blue serge and sabots, sailing boats going out; a delicate blue picture, flavouring of the soil of France. H. H. LATHANGUE.

No. 48. "Harmony in Flesh-colour and Pink—Mrs. H. B. Meux;" a full-length portrait. J. M. WHISTLER. One of three portraits, slightly painted, but powerful in effect; subtle and harmonious in tone.

No. 50. "Moon-rise;" over flat land, seen through trees; foreground figures in gloom. STUART LLOYD.

No. 49. "Wrexham Broad, Norfolk." E. H. FAHEY.

A true, grey effect under heavily laden clouds, the perspective over shallow water is indicated in the sketch.

Next is the pictule sketched opposite, an important composition by a young artist who has seldom exhibited in this country—

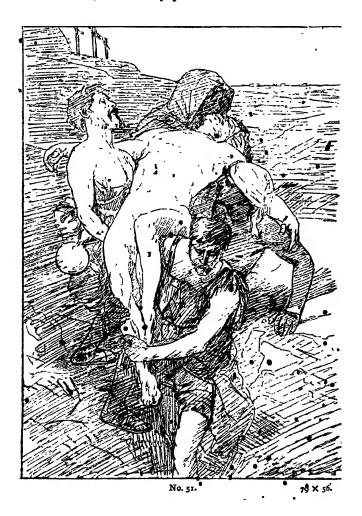

No. 51. "The Entognhment." Julian Story.

The figures in this gicture are all subdued in tone, the principal accents of colour being the yellow head-dress of the dark bearer, and the reddish drapery of the foreground figure; Mary is in a black hood; in the distance, Calvary.

No. 52. "Mrs. J. Collier;" full length, standing, in long cloak, dark background; an excellent likeness. J. COLLIER.

No. 53. "Zeyra." Sir F. LEIGHTON, P.R.A.

A little Eastern child in plum-coloured headdress, apple in hand; a rich bit of colour, elaborately painted.

No. 51. " The Eytombment." JULIAN STORY.

Next we come to a group of five of Mr. Alma-Tadema's pictures, which may best be examined together; the first, No. 54 (sketched opposite), a young mother and child, in antique, Roman garden, full of brilliant red poppies; marble bust on pedestal.

No. 55. "L: dwig Barnay as Marc Antony."
L. ALMA-TADEMA, R.A.

One of the relebrated Meiningen Company, who appeared at Drury Lane Theatre in 1881. Note the painting in this picture, also in the fine portrait of "Hans Richter," No. 59, on the same wall on the right—

No. 61. "An Audience;" small upright picture; three heads of fair beauties; pale green and saffron draperies. L. ALMA-TADEMA, R.A.

54. " Early Affections." • L. ALMA-TADEMA, R.A.

No. 60. "A Torch Dance." L. ALMA-TADEMA, R.A.

No. 57. "The Release of Pranetheus by Hercules."
W. B. RICHMOND.

The central feature in the gallery is the large composition sketched on opposite page; a decorative picture on an unusually large scale for this artist. On either side are two fruit panels—

No. 56. "Pomegranates." No. 58. "Oranges." W. Hughes.

No. 65. "A King's Daughter." HEYWOOD HARDY.

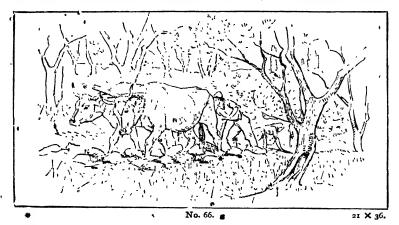

"Shy woodland creatures feed
From her hand,
And listen whilst she sings."

No. 62. "Danae at the Brazen Tower." E. BURNE JONES.

No. 63. "H.R.H. The Prince of Wales." G. F. WATTS, R.A. Full length, standing, nearly life size, in black gown of the Middle Temple.

No. 64. "The Vale of Teith, &c., &c." JOHN SMART, R.S.A.

No. 66. "Under the Olives;" white oxen ploughing. A. LEMON.

No. 69. "Palladian Architecture, Vicenza." J. O'CONNOR.

No. 67. "Scherzo in Blue—'The Blue Girl'." J. M. WHISTLER.

No. 68. "Mrs. Garrow-Whitby." J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

Three-quarter length portrait in light blue serge; standing, front face, with black hat in her hands.

No. 73. "A Portrait." H.R.H. PRINCESS LOUISE. Dark hair, black dress, velvet cushion and azaleas.

No. 70. "Good Night to the Flowers." R. P. STAPLES.

"The tall pink foxglove bent its head.

The violets bowed and went to bed."

Girl, in dark dress, in a garden; evening light.

Next, on the line, is an elaborately-studied landscape with two small figures—

No. 71. "The Mouth of March." J. W. NORTH.

This landscape was painted in Somersetshire at the end of March, when the celandines, furze and broom are in blossom; a picture requiring much examination to appreciate the observant, learned work in it.

Mr. North's Algerian landscapes will be remembered in former years.

No. 72. "Sweet Rest;" a young girl seated. R. LEHMANN.

No. 74. "Golden Apples;" graceful figure of Italian girl.
MRS. S. ANDERSON.

No. 75. "An Autumnal Ramble by the Spey—Portrait of Mrs. Priestley." G. H. BOUGHTON, A.R.A. An upright landscape, with one tall figure in black, standing by a river.

- No. 76. "Styhend Pass, Cumberland." A. W. HUNT.

This picture was painted nearly thirty years ago, and is interesting as a contrast to Ms. Hunt's present work. "A wild scene, inviting strong painting," as the artist describes it.

Seated, in red robes, looking far away out of the picture; a bold and imaginative treatment of the Premier's well-known features; a cortrait with the quality of originality strongly marked.

No. 78. "Norah, Daughter of the Hon. Major Bourke."
W. E. MILLER.

Girl in salmon-colour dress; three-quarter length.

No. 79. "A Rellearsal." E. J. GREGORY.

Girl in low-toned pink dress, with grey fan; yellow curtain on the right; mirror in background. A clever genre picture by a young painter of great ability, of whose work we do not see half enough; the dashing sketch indicates well the spirit of the composition.

No. 80. "The Land of Windmills;" an upright landscape.

J. C. FARRER.

No. 81. "Spring—Calvados." W. J. HENNESSY.

Upright landscape overlooking the sea; two children, spring green, with white thorn and silver birch, under a grey sky.

No. 82. " Woodland Gleanings." E. A. WATERLOW.

Autumn landscape, gathering wood for winter fires; a good landscape by a young artist.

No. 88. "Mrs. John Pritt-Gardner;" standing, in white dress; rich interior. E. H. CORBOULD.

In the centre of the wall (in the place of honour) is the fine portrait picture sketched below.

No. 83. "The Children of Moulton Barrett, Esq."

J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

Girl with dark hair in light green dress; boy in brown velvet.

No. 84. "Theodosia Leslie." Sir John Leslie.

On either side of the above are two noticeable pictures, Nos. 81 and 85, each very characteristic of the artists. The former a bit of Normandy; the latter, a trading boat shortening sail, on a Venetian lagune, eketched on p. 33.

On the line here is the powerful portrait of a well-known lady; black velvet dress, dark blue chair.

No. 87. "Miss Tonks." FRANK HOLL, A.R.A.

No. 88. 4. T. Davics. Colley, Esq." J. H. G. PARTINGTON.

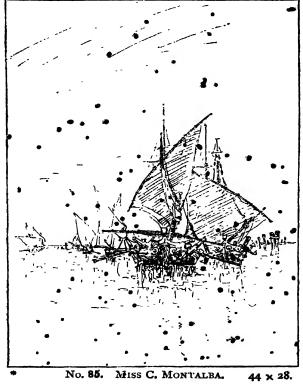

A prominent blue picture here (a companion to the red robes of Mr. Gladstone opposite) is—

No. 89. "Miss Flamborough." W. HOLMAN HUNT.

A child, with flowing curls of fair hair, in bright blue frock, holding an orange; brown lamb, poppies in foreground; background of dark trees (See Vicar of Wakefield.)

No. 92. FLORENCE GRAHAM. #200 x 16.

No. 98. "A Winter Posy," chrysanthemums, in blue and white china vase. LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarres).

No. 99. "The Children in the Wood;" two figures.

• MRS. LOUISE JOPLING.

No. 100. "Oporto, from the Sandeman Wine Lodges." C. N. HEMY.

A large view of the town with its red tiled roofs, vessels in foreground; a piled-up city like Genoa, as seen from the sea.

In the centre of this wall is-

"Molles sub arbore somni."-VIRGIL, Georg. 11. 272.

No. 102. "Sleeping Girl." MRS. ARTHUR MURCH.

White drapery, vine overhead; a touch of bright colour in the red and yellow roses on the marble seat. One of five pictures by this artist, who works in Italy.

Next are two pictures by young artists—

No. 101. "A Christian Martyr." MISS E. PICKERING.,

A sorrowful figure by a cross, in red robe; Miss Pickering's work will be remembered in former exhibitions, notably in 1878 and 1879.

No. 103. 'A Rehearsal.". Mrs. John Collier.

Children practising steps for the pantomime in dark stuff dresses; the old dressing foom of a theatre lighted by the hight colours of masks and costumes.

No. 105. "A Moor." S. Melton Fisher.

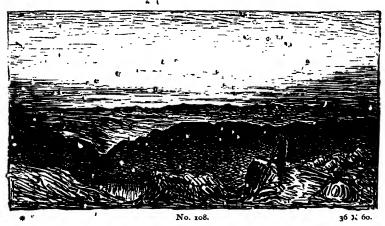

No. 106. "Nocturne in Black and Gold Entrance to Southampton Water;" the pier at night, light hoisted. J. M. WHISTLER.

No. 107. "R. S. Holford, Esq." SIR COUTTS LINDSAY.

No. 104. "The Sirens Three." P. R. MORRIS, A.R.A.

An impression of the herring-fleet going out at Wick; a picture of brightness and airy qualities; pink and orange-coloured dresses against deep blue sea.

the kind Gods into an elmond tree; and after, as he passed by, consumed with sorrow for her, she became once more visible to him, no less loving than of old time; and this was the first blossoming of the almond tree."

The two figures (which occupy nearly the whole of the canvas) are projected, so to speak, forward towards the spectator, the anatomy of the limbs being brought into powerful relief. There is intensity of expression in the faces; the prevailing colours are the brown flesh and almond blossom.

No. 145. "Perseus and the Graiæ." E. BURNE, JONES.

"The three sisters called the Graiæ, who dwelt at the world's end, were full of all wisdom, but had only one eye between them; thither came Perseus and stole the eye from them, and, as the price of its return, had from them the wisdom whereby he slew the Gorgon."

A small picture; four figures seated, crouching, on the ground.

No. 146. "Luke Ionides, Esq." W. B. RICHMOND.

No. 147. · "Portrait of Mrs. Charles Plowden." MRS. A. MURCH.

·CHATTO & WINDUS'S LIST OF BOOKS.

Beautifully bound in a novel style, small 4to, 16s.

THE LADY OF THE LAKE. By Sir WALTER

With numerous fine Illustrations.

SCOTT. With numerous line litustrations.

The Lady of the Lake" has been chosen as a subject for illustration, not only for its picturesque features, which invite in an unusual degree the sympathmic treatment of the artist, but also for the romentic personal interest which he story inspires, and which gives it a close hold on the affections of all readers. So thorough is the verisimilitude of the poem, and so accurate arc its descriptions of scenery, that the events which it describes are accepted as absolute hist. In the region where the scene is laid; and no true Highlander books with tolerand anyone where the ventures to doubt their actual occurrence, It has happened, therefore, at the romantic poem in which the genus of Scott has united and har monised the leginds of Lock Katrine and the Trosachs has become the best Hambook to the Scottish Laki-region. It is believed that the present Illustrated Edition will be a welcome souvenir to thousands of travellers who have visited that beautiful region.

believed that the present Illustrated Edition will be welcome souvenir to thousands of travellers who have visited that beautiful region.

In order to secure accuracy as well as freshness of treatment, the Publishers commissioned Mr. A. V. S. ANGHONY, under whose supervision this Edition has been executed, to visit the Scot ish Highlands and make sketches on the spot. Nearly, every scene of the was personally visited and sketched by him, and these Sketches have afformed the basis of the landscapes oftered in this book. These landscapes of robvious reasons, depict the Scenery as it is at the present time; while the Costumer, Weapons, and other accessories of the figure-pieces are of the period of the action of the poem, being carefully studied from contemporary pictures and descriptions, or from later authoritative works.

Birthday Flowers: Their Language and Legends. By W. J. GORDON. Illust. in Colours by VIOLA BOUGHTON. [Shortly.

By W. J. GORDON. Illust. in Colours by VIOLA BOUGHTON. [Shortly. This sumptuous and elegant Birthday Book is the first in which our floral treasures have been laid under really effective contribution. It has been produced at immense cost, and in it we have one of the most accurate and beautiful Masterpieces of Chromo-lithography yet issued from the press. Within its sixty-four fully-coloured pages, each lithographed in fourteen printings, we have a noble Series of lovely Bouquets, depicting in all they wealth of grace and beauty the most famous of our field and garden jewels; as a different flower is taken for every day in the year, there are no fewer than three hundred and sixty-six separate selections. The legends and the sentiments ascribed to each of the chosen blossoms have formed the theme of some fifteen hundred lines of Original Verse, and there is thus given one of the fullest. "Languages of Flowers" in existence, and the only one which is free from duplicates. An unusual amount of though, and labour has been expended on the work, and the publishers congratulate themselves that in a literary and artistic sense the result has been fully commensurate thereto. Such a collection of flowers, so complete and compact, has never before twen offered. "As a Book of Birthdays and Family Records it is unsurpassed. The addition of the scientific names to the minutely accurate delineations of platis renders its pages invaluable to the botanist and every lover of leaf and bloom. The legends which form the burden of its verse will delight the scholar and archaeologist and all students of seng and folk-lore, while the copious floral meanings, completer than in any other "language of flowers" wet available, will render it the constant companion and most treasured gift of a much more unaverous section of the community—the whole world of Sweethearts of the English-speaking nations.

"The illustrations of this volume ... are of quite sterling and admirable art, of a class precisely parallel is elevation to the character of the tales which they illustrate; and the original etchings, as I have before said in the Appendix to my 'Elements of Drawing,' were unrivalled in masterfulness of touch since Rembrandt (in come qualities of delineation, unrivalled even by him). . . To make somewhat enlarged copies of them, looking at them through a magnifying glass, and never phtting two lines where cruikshank has put only one, would be an exercise in decisior and severe drawing which would leave afterwards little to be learnt in schools."—Extract from Introduction by John Ruskin.
